

Patti Davidson modeled as Scarlett O'Hara in the mock wedding ceremony at the end of the show. The handsome young man who carries her train is Randy Gould. Patti's dress is made of delicate white lace trimmed with white ribbons. Randy's tuxedo is a caramel colour trimmed with dark brown.

Eddie Luther, of CFZRH flew Miss Stouffville, Michelle Morley, her escort. Andrew Gould and Mayor Gordon Ratcliff to the show in his helicopter.

Turnout at the fashion show was not as great as the organizers had hoped and Lynda Reilly had lots of time to relax between selling tickets.

Centennial beauties model fashions

While the adults watched the fashion parade the children found other things to do. Here, undeterred by their festive long skirts, Nicolette and Chantal Ertal join Wendy Brdjar on the fence.

Wendy Beaton, looking rather delightful herself, thoroughly enjoyed the elegant fashion parade. Below, the frog caught by a little girl seems to be wishing he were somewhere else.

Bridal fashion of the future?

Mr. Ritche's idea for the wedding gown of the year 2000A.D. Note the bouquet made up of antennae and butterflies, with a ribbon tied around them. Dana Turner, model, wears a white jumpsuit, with a long cape and a silver cap on her head. Russel Harrison, her escort models a yellow tuxedo with black detail and pants.

Music for the gala event was provided by organist Clarion Baker.

Photos
by Tribune Staff

Michelle Morley models one of Mr. Ritche's sportswear outfits. It is a soft light knit, very comfortable for spring and summer. The crowds appreciation for 'no rain' can be clearly seen in their faces.

The outdoor setting provided children with many opportunities to amuse themselves. Here Kim Miller, shows her fascinated sister Tiffany a frog she has just caught. He was a handsome fellow with a bright yellow throat, but the little girl in the middle seems a little wary.