The Old '77 Stouffville express came chugging down the parade route and proved to be a big hit with the kids. During the parade the spectators proved to be as interesting to watch as the parade, with many of them splendidly decked out in centennial apparel. One woman who dressed up was Aileen Lunau, above, far left, who is the mother of the curator of the Markham Museum. The picture on the right shows John Foulds, winner of the overall beard growing category, with his son Peter in their pioneer outfits leading on their pack mule.
