Summer's coming

Time to put the furs in storage, rinse off the rubbers, hang up the ski gear or find a corner in the basement for the toboggan.

No more slush or salt.

Time to think of sandy beaches, not sanded roads.

Snow drifts to shovel? Forget it. Drift around a lake in a canoe instead.

Let invigorating warm breezes caress your skin. While away languid evenings in open air

It's time to fill your eyes and senses with vibrant greens, reds, yellows and blues: to forget about the greys and white of winter.

It's time to plan your summer vacation... in Canada.
