Need absolute standards

By Jim Clubne
Stouffville Missionary Church

"Pornography is harmless. We think having an abortion is more moral than bringing an unwanted child into this world. Sex is cool when you are in love."

The source of these statements may appear to be from one of our every popular 'Adult Entertainment' magazines. Their source, however, is an educational publication of human sexuality given to some students at Stouffville District Secondary School.

My purpose is not to raise the question of the admissibility of this publication as educational material. That question is a good one and perhaps should be raised. I propose to uncover the problem that underlies these 'value' judgments.

The following question needs to be brought to our attention. Upon what authority does the writer of the publication make these 'value' judgments?

Pornography is judged on the grounds of its 'harm' to you, abortion on whether you 'want' a child, and sexual relations on your feeling of being 'in love'. The authority is not any absolute standard but rather each individual as he or she feels.

A value system that does not have an absolute

Non-smokers offered lower insurance

Abstainers' Insurance, the firm that exclusively insures non-drinkers, now has a sister company to cover the insurance needs of non-smokers in Ontario.

The new company, Maplex General Insurance Company Limited, Burlington, Ontario, offers lower-than-average rates for car insurance and substantially lower rates on homeowner and tenant package policies.

Statistics show that 30 percent of house fires are caused by careless smoking.

Maplex policy holders will be required to sign an affidavit stating that neither they nor the permanent residents of the household have smoked in the past year.

Introduction.

Immigration is one of the most important influences in Canadian life. It always has been.

Immigration affects us culturally, socially and economically. Domestically and internationally.

To ensure that immigration continues to work for the good of Canada, our immigration law has undergone some significant changes. And whether you're a fifth generation citizen or just a visitor, you ought to know what's new.

The changes.

For the last four years, individuals and organizations have made suggestions for change to Canada's immigration law and policy.

Many of the responses received have become part of the new immigration law, designed to serve everyone's best interests for years to come.

For the first time, the basic purposes and principles of our immigration law are clearly stated in the law itself. All other provisions of the law, and the way they are carried out by immigration officers, now flow from these purposes and principles:

- Non-discrimination. Reunion of families. Humanitarian concern for refugees. And the promotion of Canada's economic, social and cultural goals.

Just words you say? Well read on, because the rest of the new law has been carefully written to make it possible for Canada to live up to its word.

How it affects immigrants and visitors.

From now on, immigrants and those visitors who come to work or study must make all immigration arrangements before they arrive in Canada. No one may change his or her status while inside Canada.

Canada has always allowed sponsorship of the immigration of a wide range of close relatives. With the new family class, Canadian citizens can now sponsor parents of any age.

Canada has always protected refugees within her borders according to a Convention of the United Nations. This protection is now given the force of Canadian law. In addition, a new refugee class defines the when, how and who of accepting refugees for resettlement in Canada.

Civil rights of those involved in immigration proceedings receive greater protection under the new law. And deportation will no longer be the only possible penalty. There are now less drastic alternatives for minor infractions of immigration law. Immigration will not be easier, but it will be more predictable. Immigrants and visitors should always talk to their Canadian Government visa office before they make a move. That way, they'll know exactly where they stand when they step off the plane.

How it affects Canadians.

The new immigration law is a blueprint for the future. A flexible blueprint that allows for unexpected change. Its influence on the fabric of Canadian society will be subtle and long-range.

Under the new law, the federal and provincial governments will share many responsibilities. To this end, formal agreements on immigration planning and management will be made with the Provinces.

Each year, after federal-provincial discussions, a target figure for immigration volume will be announced. The number will depend upon national, regional, economic and social goals. Immigrants will be encouraged to settle in places where their particular skills are really needed. They will be discouraged from settling in places where employment is a problem.

Generally speaking, illegal immigrants will find the law tougher than ever. As will those people who exploit illegal immigrants.

The new law, of course, will continue our tradition of strong protection against international criminals and terrorists.

In these ways and more, our new immigration law can only make Canada stronger. And a better place to live.

The future.

The future of immigration in Canada cannot be controlled by an ironclad set of rules. Canada's new immigration law combines humanity, justice, international responsibility and adaptability in a way that no other country's immigration law ever has.

We're proud of it. And we invite you to learn more by asking for detailed pamphlets at your nearby Canada Immigration Centre.
