

Dog protects home

Dear Sir:
I recently read in The Tribune, the story of Henry and Lola Walsh of Ballantrae. I feel the true facts aren't being faced.

I know from experience that a German Shepherd makes a wonderful guard dog. I have one.

Previous to obtaining him, my house was entered on several occasions while I was out shopping or away for the weekend. I lost a great amount of valuable furniture and other articles that cannot be replaced.

Since I acquired the dog, no burglar has dared enter my home.

If a dog is well trained, it will not attack small children. However, it will often bark fiercely enough to frighten them, especially if the children have not been trained to handle them. My neighbor's children put their hands down so the dog can smell them. Once they recognize the scent, they understand they are friendly and will not attack.

I do not agree, however, that a couple needs to have four dogs. One or at the most, two, should be sufficient. But I do agree with Mr. Walsh that if another dog comes onto his property, it is only natural for the owner's animal to attack it.

Perhaps the Humane Society should be asked to investigate the situation rather than taking the problem to legal authorities. Their attitude is not, as most people believe, totally on the side of the animals, but I'm sure they could assess the situation and come to some agreement regarding the situation.

I write this letter for two reasons. First, because I am experienced with dogs and second, because I feel elderly people living alone need an animal for protection.

My sympathies rest with Mr. and Mrs. Walsh. I hope the people who want the dogs destroyed will change their minds when they realize and understand the needs of others.

Margaret Robinson,
RR 3, Mt. Albert.

Two dogs enough

Dear Mr. Thomas:
I agree with you 100 per cent - four dogs per household are two too many. Two dogs is the most any family needs and sometimes they can also be a nuisance.

The sooner legislation is passed to this effect, the better for everyone. Regardless of what people may say, two dogs are easier controlled than four. This is one of the worst problems we have today. Ask any sheep farmer.

Stan Phillips,
RR 2,
Stouffville.
