

Thirty-two year old truck runs as good as it looks

Joe Dart of RR 2, Stouffville, has a talent when it comes to refurbishing old cars and trucks. Last month, The Tribune featured a 1924 Model "T" Ford, fixed up like new by

Mr. Dart. Now, he has a two-ton 1947 Ford truck, like it just rolled off the assembly line. It's on display at his home, north of Musselman's Lake. Jim Thomas

Program for kids

Here's an important date for mothers of preschoolers to inscribe indelibly on their aspirin bottles - September 18. That's the first day of registration in the library's "morning hour" program for children.

We know from experience we'll be inundated with parents and progeny as soon as our doors open at 9 a.m., so anyone who wishes to enroll a youngster for a specific morning of the week should apply early. Pre-schoolers must be three years old by this month and each registration must be made by a parent (or authorized adult) who should provide proof of age...uh, of the child, that is. The program's fall session runs from Oct. 2 - Nov. 23.

and always keeps his audience spellbound. Attendance, as if by magic, is free.

Gallery gala Usually our library column straggles unobtrusively into print somewhere between the IGA chicken bits and the baseball scores. But, two Tribunes ago, did you notice how it was elevated to the top of page two and deferentially framed like the Mona Lisa?

That was pretty apropos for a column about an important art happening; the exhibition of works by major Canadian artists which opens in the Latham Gallery next week.

Campers' villa at Cedar Beach

By Chris Shanahan
MUSSELMAN'S LAKE. — "They come from all over." That comment by owners Audrey and Vern Davies accurately reflects the great popularity of the Cedar Beach Trailer Camp.

Located on the shores of Musselman's Lake, the camp offers first class facilities on approximately 75 acres of beautiful park land.

This summer, the Cedar Beach camp is celebrating its 50th anniversary. Festivities included a campers' parade on August 6 and a barbecue, August 11.

The history of the camp actually dates back before 1925, with the founding of a small park operation by Vern's father, George. The Cedar Beach Pavilion, however, didn't open until the spring of 1931.

Today, summertime attracts approximately 400 campers to the site. While the "majority" stay for the entire summer in the residential sections, many other "transients" camp at Cedar Beach on a short term basis.

The park consists of three camping areas, Hilltop and Lakeside for summer residents, and Woodside park for those on the move.

Recreational facilities include the beach and swimming area, tennis, shuffle board and volley ball courts, playground equipment and a children's pool. As well, the Pavilion is a main attraction, featuring 5

Power Skating Professionals, David Bernard and Michael Sanderson will conduct a Power Skating School in the Stouffville Arena, beginning Sept. 24 and continuing through Oct. 5.

There will be a class for beginners (five years and up) and more experienced skaters, nine years and up. The fee is $10. For more information call 640-4553 (evenings).

cent bingo and dances in the ballroom.

Weekly movies are also offered to entertain campers.

The Davies' camp has a four star rating in recreation, and for overall facilities. Vern proudly states that he knows of no other camp ground in Ontario which has high a rating in both these categories.

Mrs. Davies notes that this summer there are about 50 per cent more Americans at the grounds than in past years. The exchange rate on their dollar has obviously attracted U.S. vacationers looking for an economical holiday.

Many Europeans have also visited Cedar Beach, renting trailers when they reach Canada and spending an enjoyable, inexpensive vacation in the Musselman's Lake area.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Freaque and their two children have travelled all the way from Newfoundland, and are presently touring the Toronto area. This is the Freaque's first visit to Cedar Beach and they say the camp's close proximity to the city is a main attraction.

Ron Mansfield and his wife were first told of Cedar Beach by Ron's Cousin, and are generally pleased with the recommendation. They have come for a two week stay from their home, east of Montreal.

Harold and Norma Bradburn have been coming to the park "on and off" on a seasonal basis since about 1968. Originally from Oshawa, they now summer at Cedar Beach and spend winters in Florida.

Richard Proulx and his wife are staying at the camp for five weeks, and returned this summer because they "liked it last year." The Proulx's have come from Sudbury to take teaching courses in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry

Goss and family from Long Island, New York, are camping at Cedar Beach for the first time. They are impressed with the park's cleanliness, as well as its central location.

Harold Ness and his wife have been camping at Cedar Beach for about ten summers, and used to travel to Arizona for the rest of the year. They now reside in an apartment in Toronto when not staying at the park.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frenette from Toronto are spending a two week vacation at the lake site. Mr. Frenette says the camp is "very nice," with a main advantage being its closeness to his home. "We'll come back next year for sure," he says.

A friendly atmosphere prevails at Cedar Beach, with Audrey and Vern on a first name basis with many of the campers.

The obliging and enthusiastic way in which they run their trailer park, gives the impression that the couple genuinely love their work.

No water search. The machine set up on the former Gar Lehman farm, across from the Stouffville Sales Barn on proposed Dulverton Development lands, isn't drilling for water as one might suspect, but merely probing an old drill at the site in an effort to retrieve a steel shaft left there several years ago.

Whitby Psychiatric Hospital. Living proof that our attitude toward mental illness has never been healthier.

Back in 1919 when Whitby Psychiatric Hospital first opened its doors, no one could have dreamed of the advances to be made in mental health care. As it celebrates 60 years of service, this respected facility is a tribute to these advances and to the healthier attitude toward mental illness.

Fortunately much of the fear of the unknown has disappeared. Gone are the days when the mentally ill patient was simply "put away." Out of sight. Out of mind.

Modern methods have introduced a new dimension to the delivery of mental health services. At the same time, we have come to recognize mental illness for what is—an illness to be treated like any other.

What better proof of this than the fact that 75% of the patients in Ontario's psychiatric hospitals, such as Whitby, are there voluntarily.

This attitude, which is reflected in Ontario's Mental Health Act, along with the impressive advances in treatment are clear indications of the tremendous progress toward better control and alleviation of mental illness.
