

Fashion parade at S.D.S.S.

Still a "jean scene"

STOUFFVILLE — It's a return to "the jean scene" at Stouffville High.

They dominate the 'fashion' parade on Edward Street this fall. In fact, when Jim Holt of The Tribune staff went girl-watching, Friday, he had to do some persistent searching to find a single skirt. The one he found was worn by Cheryl Stelling of Cedar Valley. Skirts are her choice, she says, because "they're more comfortable".

Not so with Denise Knights of Rupert Avenue, Stouffville. She looked particularly smart in the style of jeans she selected for school. And she liked their comfort too.

Mary-Jo Sutherland, a style-conscious teen, has good things to say about both. Dress jeans are popular, she says, but there's nothing wrong with skirts either. She wears them occasionally.

Convenience, was the word used by Esther Herbert of Hawthorne Avenue, to describe her preference for jeans. She was quick to point out, however, that she never wears them to church on Sunday.

Nancy McGinn, RR 4, Stouffville, approached the matter from a practical angle. "It all depends what school activities are planned for the day," she said, "I like to wear clothes that are appropriate for the occasion".

Heather Raymer, also of Stouffville, RR 4, claims skirts are more "ladylike". She feels the higher the grade, the better dressed are the students.

Jeans dominate the fashion scene at Stouffville High this fall, although dresses are still worn by some girls, particularly in the senior grades. Denise Knights (left) of Rupert Avenue, Stouffville, proves jeans can be practical and still look smart. A blouse and skirt are the choice of Cheryl Stelling (right) of R.R. 1, Cedar Valley.

Marilyn Stainton says jeans appeal to every age group because they have no fashion status. She points out too that kids in Grades 12 and 13 aren't growing as fast as those in Grades 9 and 10, therefore, they can invest in a wardrobe that's certain to last a few years.

Like Marilyn, lives on 19th Avenue, Markham, admits skirts are more feminine. But for her, convenience and comfort come first. While jeans are most popular, it's not a case of "follow the leader" at S.D.S.S. Students are wearing what they like according to their requirements.
