Think again

Dear Jim
It's difficult to understand why other organizations and individuals can have land re-zoned from rural residential, but when a religious organization wishes to do the same, some objections are raised.

If my information is correct, the reason is said to be that something less than the usual ten acres of land cannot be severed. Surely it is logical to expect any group of people to have decided what their land requirements would be for a reasonable number of years into the future. And to expect them to saddle themselves with expensive land they will never need is completely illogical.

I would hope Town Council will re-consider this decision. While I'm sure no religious bigotry is involved, it could be a situation where misunderstanding could place Canadian religious freedom in an unfavorable light.

Dear Editor:

With reference to your Dec. 5 Front Page headline story, we say "bunk" to your survey.

A public meeting was held in Gormley, Dec. 4 to discuss the road-closing in Gormley. Twenty-six persons attended and when a vote was taken, only one was recorded as being in favor of closing the road. This is less than four per cent.

At the same meeting, it was decided to select a committee to oppose the road-closing. We, the undersigned, form part of that committee and suggest you give us equal coverage and tell it like it is.

Editor's Note: We would have been pleased to "tell it like it is" if The Tribune had been invited to your meeting.

Community newspaper

Dear Jim:

Congratulations on your wonderful paper of Dec. 6. It was so full of "people pictures and news" I haven't got through it all yet.

The color picture on Page 1 was also very attractive.

The Tribune is delivered to our door every Thursday morning and "makes our week". For a Town our size, it's the best weekly newspaper I've seen.

Your policy appears to be to make the paper as much a part of the community as possible. And this is great. Even comparative newcomers here are thrilled with this type of approach. They've told me so.

Congratulations again. May you long enjoy continued success with a marvellous publication.

Aid provided organizations

Dear Mr. Thomas:

On behalf of the Goodwood Brownies and Girl Guides and their leaders, I wish to extend our thanks to you and your staff for publishing my letter in which I pointed out the grave need for immediate volunteer help if the two groups were to continue.

I am pleased to report we were successful in locating this much-needed assistance. We are happy to welcome Sheila Landsman to our Brownie group and Lee Gooding and Debbie Trippen to the Girl Guide group.

The Goodwood Brownies, Guides and Pathfinders take this opportunity to wish you and your staff as well as all residents of the community, "A Very Merry Christmas."

Mrs. B. Groff
Goodwood Brownies.

Tons of refuse

Would you believe it? About 900 tons of refuse is being deposited daily at the York Sanitation landfill site, east of Hwy. 48 and north of the Bloomington Road.

Raise $1,300

The Book Fair at Orchard Park School, co-ordinated by Daphne Goldman, Elm Road, raised close to $1,300. From this amount, about $260 will be spent on needed projects.
