

Kicking off the 1980s Library events

Well, here we are, stepping intrepidly into print for the first time this decade.

1980! Now, there's a fine expansive number. At the library, it's aroused a tingle of anticipation - like being handed the keys to the wine cellar instead of a bottle of Brights - and we're looking to the future with renewed expectations.

"It's Magic" That's the self-explanatory title of the show we've conjured up for family enjoyment;

Jan. 19. Paul Don, who appears on the TV series "The Children's Magic Workshop", is the wizard in charge of disappearances. The programme starts at 1.30 p.m.

Photographic Art If a picture's worth a thousand words then a vibrant vocabulary is explicit in the color photographs on display in our Latham Gallery from now until Feb. 6. The spectacular nature studies are the work of Dr. Ed Sellers who is Professor of Pharmacology at University of Toronto and Chairman of the Banting and Best Diabetes Centre. Proceeds from the sale of pictures accruing to the artist, will be assigned to the Centre.

Rock Group The "Setting Stones" might be an apt name for the group of youngsters who've been making ornaments and jewelry from polished stones, these past two Saturdays, in the library. Our thanks go to John Brubacher of Albert Street who volunteered his time and expertise to conduct this popular programme.

"Monkey Business" with puppets We're sure everyone who attended last year's Lampon Puppet Theatre will be lining up to see another lively performance on Jan. 26. This time two monkey puppets will be brought to life by their talented handlers, Alison and Johan Vanderguns, when the show starts at 1.30 p.m.

Resolutions We make only one irrevocable resolution each year and that's to provide as complete and competent a library service as possible in our community. The other resolutions? Unfortunately, they're subject to retraction like this month's election promises. To quote sage words from our library luncheon, where dietary commitment is as fleeting as fizz, "Promises and pie crusts are made to be broken."
