Canine control

No 'dog's life' says officer

STOUFFVILLE For Paul Jackson, the likelihood of being attacked by a ferocious dog is "an occupational hazard".

Paul's an employee of Kennel Inn, a canine control service in Whitchurch - Stouffville and he enjoys it very much. In fact, there's no other place he'd rather work.

Since it first opened in 1975, Kennel Inn now covers such municipalities as Bradford, West Gwillimbury, Aurora, King, Richmond Hill, Vaughan and Whitchurch - Stouffville.

One of five drivers, Paul has clocked more than 100,000 miles in less than four years.

Facilities include several boarding kennels, indoor cages, outdoor runs and accommodation for such 'pets' as hawks, owls, raccoons, pheasants, a deer, two monkeys and a bear. Paul admits that, on occasions, he gets into some dangerous situations. Recently, he was hit in the eye by an irate dog-owner, but he's hesitant to talk about that. Also, three years ago, he was bitten by a rabid raccoon and had to receive anti-rabies shots. They hurt more than the bite.

No experience is required, Paul says. However, at Kennel Inn employees spend a two week period in on-the-job training.

Paul loves animals, so much so, he adopted a cross between a wolf and a German Shepherd. They're inseparable.

From day to day, Paul never knows where he'll be or what he'll be doing. "It's an adventure," he says.

"Down under"

Dear Jim: I've just returned from spending the winter in New Zealand. There, the Canadian dollar is worth 87 cents, the American dollar, about even. The prices of homes are about the same as here, with farmland selling for about $1,200 to $1,400 an acre. Milk is eighteen cents a pint, delivered in glass bottles and butter is 87 cents a pound.

Automobiles are expensive. A standard G.M. car costs about $16,000. Gas sells for 48 cents a litre.

I attended a sheep-shearing contest. The winner of the competition sheared 20 sheep in 20 minutes. I also visited a farm and saw 170 cows milked in 90 minutes.

Much of New Zealand is hill country with considerable acreage yet to be cleared.

Yes, dogs do ride on the rear of motor bikes. Opossums are very plentiful.

While some farms contain up to 500 milk cows, there are no buildings except for a hay shed and a place where the cows can be milked. I thought perhaps some of these observations might be of interest to your country subscribers.

Intercircle Racing

Tuned to speed

STOUFFVILLE - A decade ago, European style racing was practically unknown in Canada. Today, we not only have our own Grand Prix, but a potential world champion in Giles Villeneuve, a driver for Ferrari.

Competition of this kind has introduced innumerable specialists who profess to tune and keep running these complex cars. Unfortunately, all too often, these claims fall short of expectations after the client has spent a considerable amount of money.

There are, however, one or two firms around with personnel on staff capable of coping with this type of equipment. Intercircle Racing, near the north-west corner of Hwy. 47 and Main Street (across from Tenth Line South), is such a company.

The owner and operator is 36 year old Leo Dahl, a specialist in the trade. In addition to re-building racing cars, the firm provides regular maintenance for B.M.W., Aston, Martin, Ferrari and Porsche.

Leo's been in Canada four years. He's undergone a tough apprenticeship on Europe's racing circuits, having spent twelve years as a racing mechanic before graduating to driving his own car. In the late 60's, he worked for the well-known Chevron Company in England. This firm has had its share of Formula One victories.

Intercircle also has the franchise for the formula Ford Hawk that sells for around $15,000. However, to enter "the big time" the cost is around $72,000 for a formula two.

The racing season starts in May. The Stouffville company will be entering its own car in the formula Ford field. Driving for Intercircle will be Leo's protege, Paul Macey. Paul had a hard time staying with the front-runners in his first few races but scored his first win in the last race of the year.

The company has installed some pretty sophisticated equipment such as a laser beam alignment and a suspension machine.

While competition is still a month away, the winter period has been extremely busy. Already, they have three cars being prepared.

If you'd like to assist as a sponsor and have your name flashed around the racing circuit, talk to Leo Dahl. He'll be happy to oblige.
