Rev. Philip Poole

Induct pastor

STOUFFVILLE — On Sunday, June 8 at 7:30 p.m., Rev. Philip Poole will be inducted into the ministry at Christ Anglican Church Parish, Stouffville.

The event marks a milestone in the 100 year history of the congregation. Until recently, Christ Church, Stouffville had been linked with St. Philip's, Unionville, under the pastorate of Rev. W.F. Edney.

Rev. Poole received his elementary education in Peterborough and later attended high school in Toronto. An honors graduate from Waterloo Lutheran University, he attended Trinity College for his Master of Divinity degree, heading his class with an average of eighty-two per cent.

At W.L.U., he was active in many areas including Student Council Representative, three years; Student Senator, two years; Chairman of the Homecoming Committee, one year and President of the University Choir, two years.

He majored in music there, completing the course with an average of 79 per cent.

At Trinity, he participated in both football and hockey. He was also Divinity Class President.

Interest in music has been a 'first love'. He was the co-founder of the West Toronto Choir Camp and the director of junior choirs at both St. John's West, Toronto and Holy Trinity, Thornhill. He was for three years, the Assistant Curate at Holy Trinity.

At present, he's studying towards his Master of Theology degree.

The parish has acquired a new rectory at 558 Maystone Court, Stouffville. Phillip and Karen will take up residence there, June 16.

"Contact"

STOUFFVILLE — Communication is a vital link between humans, but still many frictions exist in the interaction of people, especially within the family unit.

That was an idea stressed by Sylvia Rosenberg, Director of the Stouffville Family Life Centre, in a seminar focusing on family communications. She was guest speaker at the final Family Unity Month program, May 28, at St. James Presbyterian Church.

Basing her address partly on the book "Making Contact" by family therapist Virginia Satir, Sylvia used members of the audience to explore many facets of communication, particularly between husband and wife; parents and children. Volunteers took on different personalities, including the overly agreeable placater; the bossy person who blames everything on others; the super-reasonable type; as well as the person who feels irrelevant.

After assuming these persons, all were asked how they felt. The same answer came from each "empty inside." Sylvia explained that these personality types may not show it on the outside, but on the inside they "feel they are not lovable." If bodies feel unnatural, she added, they start to talk. These ways of behavior are "learned when people are young, in order to make sense out of what is happening in their family...in order to fit in," she said.

CHURCHES

Rev. Roy Inglis

Memorial chalice

BALLANTRAE — An engraved communion chalice, made available to the congregation by the stewards of Ballantrae United Church, was dedicated Sunday morning by Rev. Douglas McLeod in memory of Rev. Roy Inglis, a much-loved pastor here. Mrs. Inglis attended the worship.

"He loved God and his church," said Rev. McLeod, "he served Him in every way he could. His memory will be with us always."

The beautiful cup was used for a first time, Sunday, when the Lord's supper was observed.

The service celebrated the congregation's 120th anniversary. Rev. Connie McLeod brought the message. Basing her sermon on the subject "Thanks For The Memory," Mrs. McLeod urged listeners to think not only of the past but also the present. "Important events are occurring here right now," she said. "The past is made present."

The minister spoke of the small but dedicated group of people who were called to establish the church in the community 120 years ago. Of equal importance, she said, are the faithful members who carry on the church today.

Special music was provided by soloist, Lorna Wood.
