Aided Town to surpass its goal

It was "to each his own", last week, as individuals and groups joined forces to raise $20,033 in Stouffville's "Marathon of Hope". One of the participants was 12 year old Mary Hoey.

(left). Mary ran five miles a day for six days and earned $407. The four pool players (right), Bob Watson, Ello Zoffranteri, Steve Upton and Tom Stephenson collected $3,100, playing non-stop from midnight, Friday to noon on Saturday. Mary suffered a badly blistered left foot "but it was worth it," she said. Jim Thomas and Jim Holt

Old-fashioned meat market returns

By JIM IRVING. STOUFFVILLE — That's the way 23-year-old Mark Redquest, one of three partners in its an old-fashioned meat market in a modern shopping centre.

Success Plaza, sees their new venture. "I think it's what Stouffville wants," Redquest said. "People are tired of seeing everything wrapped in cellophane. And we provide friendly service."

The people apparently agree, too, because "We've really been busy since we opened two weeks ago," Mark says. "I'm very happy."

Mark attended Whitchurch - Highlands Public School; Stouffville Dist. Secondary School and then took a correspondence course in merchandising from Cornell University. He also worked in the grocery section at IGA and with Becker's Milk. However, this is his first time behind the meat counter and he's finding it highly interesting. "I'm learning as I go," says Mark. His 'teacher' is Bert Hendrickson, a Stouffville butcher.

He's also doing the administrative work and pricing the various cuts, so it's been mostly 16-hour days since he started.

But Mark doesn't mind. "When you're working towards something, it's fun."

Part of that "something", Mark and his two partners are working towards, will be the addition soon of a counter for cheese and cold cuts, with fresh fish to be added later.

They're also thinking of putting an aquarium in the window, with live lobsters. "Do you think it would go?" he asked.

The question is rhetorical, but the next one isn't. "Would you like a cup of coffee?" "I'll just plug it in."

As he says "good, friendly service."

Mrs. George Flowers. Funeral services were held at Cobourg, Tuesday for Mrs. George Flowers, formerly of Stouffville, following her passing at Van Del Manor Nursing Home, Sept. 13. Mr. Flowers resides at 116 Albert Street North.

Purse stolen. "Never leave your purse unattended in a shopping cart," warns Inspector Wm. Vance of York Regional Police. Laurel St. John of Conc. 1, Uxbridge did that on Saturday in the Sherwood Plaza at Markham. A wallet containing personal papers and $62 was stolen.

Meta van Dyk "strikes" again because arthritis research is paying off.

Watching Meta van Dyk hold a 230 average with her Tuesday night bowling league, it's hard to believe she has rheumatoid arthritis.

At first, Meta didn't believe it either. Even after several years of working in the X-ray department office of a hospital specializing in the diagnosis and treatment of rheumatic disease, she shrugged off the early symptoms of arthritis. Like a lot of other people, Meta tried to live with her aches and pains. But, there came a time when that was no longer possible.

While Meta didn't take time off work because of her condition, she found it increasingly difficult to perform simple tasks. Pain, swelling and weakness in her hands and wrists made it almost impossible to pull out a drawer, turn a water faucet or open a jar lid.

"When it got to the point that I had trouble opening the door of my refrigerator, I realized I had to have medical help," she says.

Meta got the professional help she needed. She still has arthritis but its painful, debilitating symptoms are being controlled through medication and therapy. She wishes now that she'd gone to her doctor earlier.

For Meta van Dyk, and thousands of other Canadians, arthritis research is paying off.

About one in every eight Canadians has some form of arthritis. But victory is coming within reach. Your support for The Arthritis Society is used to fund vital medical research.

For more information about arthritis contact your local Arthritis Society or write to Box 98, Terminal A, Toronto, Ontario M5W 1A2.
