Miraculous escape for driver in fiery 7th Concession crash

No one was seriously injured but property damage totalled $27,000 in a fiery collision involving a station wagon and a truck on the 7th Concession of Whitchurch-Stouffville. Driver of the station wagon was Clifford Lett, R.R. 1, Uxbridge. The truck was driven by Michael Jones of Agincourt. Firefighter Tom Brillinger of Stouffville was praised by fellow volunteers for action in turning off a valve on the truck's propane tank, thus reducing the intensity of the blaze.

Record

STOUFFVILLE — Stouffville race fans were out in large numbers at Greenwood, Monday night, and witnessed a history in the making.

Cam Fella, the sleek three-year-old pacer, owned by Norm Faulkner of Stouffville and Norm Clements of Willowdale, covered the one-mile distance in one minute, 56 seconds—a track record.

Local supporters, with hundreds of dollars riding on the race, were jubilant. Cam Fella's share of the $303,000 purse was $121,000, increasing his earnings since January to $426,000.

But even while the horse's time is currently the "talk of Toronto" (and Stouffville), it's still short of his best.

"On a track with fewer corners, he can run even faster," Faulkner explained.

One firm offer, (said to be $1 1/2 million), has been received, but it's still "no sale". "Every time he wins, his value increases," Norm told The Tribune.

Stouffville Sales Barn

Livestock treated well

A recent article in the Toronto Star, alleging cruelty to livestock by both vendors and purchasers at the Stouffville Sales Barn, was refuted by auctioneer Norm Faulkner in a recent interview with The Tribune.

Norm said "After reading the article, I invited the reporter to come out and look around the place and talk with me. Unfortunately he did not take me up on my offer. I can only assume this all started after recent allegations of animal abuse at Kensington Market, where animals are kept around for several days. We only have them on the premises for six or seven hours". Norm rejects any suggestion of cruelty, and what few justifiable complaints arise are in connection with chickens, rabbits, goats etc; due mainly to mishandling. "You know, people actually try and stuff a goat in their trunk. We have remonstrated with a few purchasers but the incidents are few and far between", he said.

According to Norm, the premises are closely policed by an inspector, appointed by the Ministry of Agriculture so as to ensure animals are not mistreated, and to see that adequate water etc is available to all livestock. In addition, the staff also patrol the premises to make sure nothing unusual is happening. "You know, we have never, ever, had a prosecution in this respect. Also, remember, some of the vendors have been coming here for over twenty years. Ask yourself, would they jeopardize their licence by being charged with cruelty?"

Norm, concluded by saying "Anyone, anytime, is welcome to come into my office and see me if they have a complaint. We have a high reputation to maintain, but, after all, we can't be everywhere

"Ruined"

STOUFFVILLE — Mary Couperthwaite has lived at 388 Stouffer Street, Stouffville, for the past ten years. She realized repairs were needed to the roof of her house so, when a Metro firm approached her concerning the job, she agreed they go ahead. What she didn't agree to was the removal of all shingles, leaving the roof boards exposed for an entire weekend. Damage due to rain has been estimated at $10,000. Additional prices are still being obtained.

"The interior of the entire house must be re-done," son Murray told The Tribune, "the upstairs is completely ruined". The company is insured and will stand good for the loss, he said.

Mr Couperthwaite said that rather than do one section at a time, the workers cleared the entire roof, then went away. That weekend, (July 17-18), the area was hit by the heaviest rain storms of the season.

Murray said that he, assisted by several neighbors, attempted to cover the boards without success. "There wasn't a square foot of dry space to stand on," he said, describing the interior. The hydro in the house had to be turned off.

Mrs Couperthwaite Sr. spent the Sunday night at her son's home on Ninth Line North. She's now living at Parkview Home until such time as repairs can be completed.

No one injured

Apartment fire

STOUFFVILLE — Three families were made homeless and damage was estimated at $25,000 in a fire, Friday night, at a residence on the corner of Park Drive South and Main Street.

The blaze started in a third-floor apartment occupied by Dale Knabb and while firemen were able to halt its spread, water damage below was extensive. These quarters were occupied by Norm Brown and Jack Harper.

"Suddenly the lights went out and I saw smoke," Norm told The Tribune. He along with a friend, Vic Richardson, tried to enter the Knabb apartment, thinking he was trapped inside. They were driven back by the heat.

Norm awakened Cheryl Harper and son Kenny, then assisted Joanne and son Michael outside.

"By the time we reached the street, the siren was sounding," he said, "we're all very lucky".

Cause of the blaze wasn't immediately determined. The house is owned by Tom Gray and Ron Mitchell of Scarborough.

Town bank won't close

STOUFFVILLE — The Stouffville Branch of the Bank of Montreal, 18 Westlawn Crescent, will remain open, a member of staff told The Tribune, Friday. So also will the branch at 86 Main Street North in Markham, but not so some 1,300 branches across Canada including 13 in Ontario and seven in Metro Toronto.

Both managers David Kelly (Stouffville) and Dan Hunt (Markham), were on vacation when word of the closings "broke" Friday. A reduction in personal savings accounts is blamed for the move.

A shut-down of the branch here wasn't even considered. The Tribune was informed. It opened only 17 months ago.

Scarborough will be hardest hit with three closings, including the Agincourt Branch at Sheppard and Brimley. Others will close at Don Mills Road and Eglinton Avenue East and at 5251 Yonge Street in Willowdale. About 50 Metro employees will be affected. However, transfers are planned for many. Accounts will also be transferred to the nearest branches, a bank spokesman said.

Goat stands guard

"We welcome browsers", read the ad in last week's Tribune from the newly-opened Hollyhocks Gifts and Crafts Shop, 12 Main Street East. But this Billy goat wasn't invited—he just came. He was standing on the front porch, Thursday morning, when a Tribune cameraman happened by.

Car Show

VANDORF — Nothing brings back memories of "the good old days" like a display of antique and classic cars.

One of the best shows in Ontario is held annually at the Whitchurch-Stouffville Museum, Woodbine Avenue at Vandorf. The date this year is Sunday, Aug. 8 from noon to 4 p.m.

The event was initiated back in 1972.

In addition to an array of "born again" automobiles, the show will feature music by the Newmarket Citizens' Band plus a country and western group; home-baking; a tea garden; craft demonstrations and a quilt raffle. There'll also be a booth with antique car parts available.

For the children, there'll be games, prizes and a fish pond.

Admission is $2 adults; $1.00 senior citizens and students; children under 12 free. In case of rain, the event will be postponed to Aug. 15.

Aid handicapped kids

WHITCHURCH — Most public schools are quiet this time of year, a sort of lull before the September storm.

At Whitchurch-Highlands, Warden Avenue and Bloomington Road, all appears quiet too—on the outside. But inside, there's activity galore. One room of the building accommodates a Summer Day Camp for children with physical disabilities. The co-ordinator is Linda Hickey, R.R. 3, Newmarket. Her assistants are Bona Duncan and Denise McDonald, both of Stouffville.

Whitchurch-Stouffville's involvement came about almost by "accident". Gayle Atkinson, director of the Town's Seneca College Program, dropped into the Ballantrae Community Centre one afternoon last summer "out of curiosity" and saw a class in action—strictly volunteer. She recommended it be aided through the Parks and Recreation Board. Twenty-one hundred dollars was budgeted.

The children come from all areas of York Region. A registration fee of $65 covers the six-week program. Parents must provide their child's transportation.

In addition to financial assistance from the municipality, help has also been provided by the Stouffville Progress Club; the Ballantrae Lions Club and the Newmarket Arts and Crafts Council.

"They (the children) are thriving on it," says Linda, "all of a sudden their bodies are working". She says even in a very short time, she can see improvement.

Handicapped children are often "passive spectators", Linda explained. However, when placed in groups, they're more easily motivated.

Linda praised the personal interest in the program taken by Mayor Eldred King. "He dropped in one day and 'fell in love' with one of our girls," she said. Like Mayor King, folks are welcome to stop by anytime. Hours, Monday through Friday are 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

STOUFFVILLE — "At this point, I don't plan to run for anything," Ged Stonehouse told The Tribune.

Stonehouse, the 1980 runner-up in Whitchurch-Stouffville's mayoralty race, was contacted by the paper, Friday, after Mayor Eldred King had already confirmed he would seek another term.

The local travel agent and chairman of the Town's Canada Week celebrations, admitted he'd been asked the same question by several people in recent weeks.

Stonehouse noted that Mayor King's fortunes were much brighter this time around due to his strong stand on the water issue and the fact the Dulverton Development, "while perhaps three years down the road", has been signed.

"I really appreciate the guy," he said of Mayor King, "he's extremely knowledgeable and hard-working—I think we could work well together".

Mr Stonehouse said that while he enjoys the challenge of competition, "I don't particularly like standing up in front of people and telling them how good I am". Election date is Monday, Nov. 8.
