

Seek family history

Dear Readers: I am attempting to locate descendants of George Flint and his wife Mary Rose (nee Teed) who came to reside at Stouffville in 1855. Work is nearing completion on facts pertaining to their two eldest children. The others, on whom information is still required include:

- No. 3-John (1852); married Ruth Rivas; children-Stanley, Willard, George, Edith, Minnie or Winnie.
- No. 4-Ida Rose (1854); married William Bruels of Markham Township; children-Ella (?), Ada, Mae (another), Edna, Harold (another).
- No. 5-Paul (1857); married Elizabeth; children-Clemance, George, Ida.
- No. 6-Simeon (1859).
- No. 7-Simeon (1861); married Ella; children-Martin, Olive, Gordon.
- No. 8-Frank R. (1863); married Dorothy; children-Frank, Ivan, (another), Cecil, George, Ethel, Kathleen.
- No. 9-Ralf (1865); married Annie; children-Hazel, Margaret, Arthur.
- No. 10-Mary Ada (1868); married William Campbell; children-Austin, Irving, Lois, Norman, Kenneth.

Police system working

YORK REGION — When the York Regional Police Commission last year decided to re-vamp its program for schools, and replace the Youth Bureau, the fat hit the fire and protesters came out of the woodwork to angrily denounce the change.

It would appear, however, that the Board's decision had been a wise one, and from the letters of commendation coming into the Commission these days, a successful move.

The structural changes in the Bureau were made to try and reach the student population most needing aid, and this appears to be working.

Though school safety programs are still a big part of school programming, the presentations to high schools in the community are receiving plaudits.

Letters from secondary schools in Newmarket and Georgina attest to the success of the program.

"It proves that our Community Relations Bureau is successful despite all the arguments we heard in the past," Gladys Rolling, Vice-Chairman of the Regional Police told the Board.

Regional Chairman Bob Forhan also expressed his pleasure at the success of the Bureau, and said the letters of commendation coming into the Board are a strong indication of its worth.

Sell car ---judge

STOUFFVILLE — "Park your car or, better still, sell it," Provincial Judge J.S. Climens told a 21-year-old Stouffville area man, charged with dangerous driving.

Stephen Tustin was fined $250 and placed on eighteen months probation following his conviction in Newmarket Court. His license was suspended three years.

According to evidence, Tustin led police on a high-speed chase, through thick fog, endangering his own life and that of the constable in close pursuit. The accused said he didn't stop because he had been in the back of his car. He was also on probation at the time, he said.
