

"Girl Next Door"

An exemplary teen

Praises parents

By Jim Thomas
STOUFFVILLE — Fifteen-year-old Jackie Bart, Rupert Avenue, Stouffville, portrays all things associated with the Christian way of life. Her personality, her honesty, even her smile, reflect an inner beauty that only an associate Christian can comprehend.

"I love God," she says, admitting that being the daughter of missionary parents has helped. However, this "feeling" goes beyond the influence of Mom and Dad. There's Springvale Baptist Church, the minister and the young people there she come to know. There's Jim Rehille, a teacher on the staff of S.D.S.S., whom she admires and respects. And there's Petra Reischke, one of her closest friends.

Jackie's our "Girl Next Door". Although Canadian-born, Jackie spent several years in Argentina while her parents were on the mission field there. She speaks Spanish fluently.

Jackie has made the adjustment from Argentina to Canada well, so well, she plans to stay, even though Rev. and Mrs. Bart are returning in two years' time. She still keeps in touch with Gabriella, a school friend there—often by telephone.

Although not entirely certain concerning a future career, Jackie leans towards something related to Childhood Education. She describes Sheila Naylor, her teacher in this subject as "fabulous".

At Springvale, Jackie teaches in the Skyforce group and helps out in the Sunday School when needed. At S.D.S.S., she plays the clarinet in the Sr. Band; sings in the School Choir and belongs to the Inter-School Christian Fellowship.

She has two older sisters, Cynthia, 20, and Pamela, 18.

Jackie's travelled extensively, including visits to such countries as Chile, Ecuador, Brazil, Belgium and Holland. Some day she hopes to make it to India, Russia, Spain, Italy and Hawaii. For the time-being, however, she's content to stay in Stouffville.

Fifteen-year-old Jackie Bart, Rupert Avenue, Stouffville, is a Grade 11 student at Stouffville High. She's a member of the S.D.S.S. Sr. Band and Choir; the Inter-School Christian Fellowship and the congregation of Springvale Baptist Church. —Jim Thomas.
