After twenty years with three firms at the same location—Stiver Bros., Master Feeds and Stouffville Feeds, Mervin Harper has retired. He said his farewells to staff members, Thursday. For fifteen years, he operated the mobile mixer, then accepted the position of mill foreman. He came to know most of the customers personally and admits he'll miss the associations.

Mill foreman

He's missed

STOUFFVILLE —Steady customers of Stouffville Feeds Limited have noticed a change there this week—not in the property but in the personnel.

Mervin Harper, a staff employee for the past twenty years, has retired. He said his good-byes, Thursday.

It was back in Feb. 1963 that Lloyd Hamm, now company manager, sought out Mervin's services to operate the mobile. Mervin agreed, not knowing then he was taking on a job that would last 15 years. He's also been mill foreman 4 1/2 years.

Mervin has seen two major business changes at the site—Stiver Bros., to Master Feeds to Stouffville Feeds. He's enjoyed each of these associations.

"I liked it on the road," he says, "and in the mill too". He retained old friends and, at the same time made many new friends, due to the fact most of his dealings were with farmers.

Prior to taking up residence on the 8th Conc. of Pickering, he assisted in the operation of the Harv. Schell farm on the Ninth Line, south of town. He spent 18 years there. When the federal government moved into Pickering, Mervin and his wife moved to Stouffville. Their home on Glad Park Avenue is a town beauty-spot.

With the exception of several weeks one winter when he suffered a broken leg, Mervin has missed little time from work. More often than not, he's been the first on the job in the morning, sometimes as early as seven.

"I'll miss it," he admits, "I'd rather keep on working". However, he's heeding the advice of his physician.

Mervin is sure to find plenty to keep him busy. He hopes to spend more time in adult ministry at the Unionville Alliance Church. He also sees things to do around home.

But Stouffville Feeds Limited isn't quite the same this week, nor will it be in the weeks ahead. For employees of Mervin Harper's calibre can never be replaced.

Dozer drones on

STOUFFVILLE —Is nothing sacred?

On Good Friday, while an ecumenical service was in progress at Christ Church Anglican, Sunset Boulevard, a bulldozer droned next door, working on the proposed addition to Orchard Park School.

Although windows were closed to keep out the noise, the incessant sound proved irritating to worshippers. "He's probably getting time-and-a-half," commented a member of the congregation, with reference to the operator.

Participating ministers included Rev. Philip Poole of the host church; Rev. Cecil Tiller, Stouffville United and Rev. Ted Green, St. James Presbyterian.

Participants from the congregation included Canon Jim Puxley, Rev. Charles Ledger, Karen Bowman and John McMurray. Jim Rehill presided at the organ.
