

Aluminum windows the ticket

It won't be long before winter winds howl out of the north right through the gaps or cracks around your windows. With openings for cold air to get inside your home, the extra energy needed to keep your house comfortably warm could be substantial and expensive. Aluminum-storm windows can solve the problem and save you money.

Even if there are no openings around your windows, they can be conducting heat from inside your home to the outside. If your current windows have only one pane of glass (single glazed), that glass will absorb heat from the inside of your house and transfer it to the outside, where it does you no good.

ELIMINATE EXPOSURE
But if you eliminate the direct exposure of your window glass to the cold air on the outside, the glass will conduct far less heat and you will not have to use as much energy to keep your house warm. One way of doing this is to install aluminum storm windows.

Properly installed storm windows can fill the cracks and openings around old windows and provide a second window glazing to repel the coldest winter weather.

Modern aluminum storm windows installed over original windows that have been correctly caulked as well as weather-stripped can reduce window heat loss by as much as 40 per cent. If your house is air conditioned, they can also save on summer cooling loss.

Because of the energy they conserve, aluminum storm windows often pay for themselves in approximately five years.

It's a good idea to compare the construction of various windows. A tightly-fitted aluminum window with strong corners is much more energy efficient than prime windows. Quality storm windows have thick weather stripping and heavy glass, and joints in the frames are neat and strong. A storm window made of thinner materials may not be as durable or reliable as well constructed windows.

One of the major advantages of aluminum storm windows is the beauty they add to your home. The clean, well-maintained look of newly installed aluminum windows will last for years and years because aluminum will not rot, rust or deteriorate. Since aluminum won't shrink, swell or warp, it's virtually impervious to the effects of the weather. The frames are more durable than wood or vinyl plastic windows.

With the variety of colors available in aluminum storm windows, it's easy to select a color to match or contrast with the outside of your home and give it a snappier, more distinguished appearance.

On a red brick house, white aluminum storm windows are particularly effective. For a beige or cream-colored house, you might consider brown aluminum storm windows; for a yellow house, bronze storm windows.

Most aluminum storm windows today are multiple-track units with screens that slide into place or can be stored out of the way during the winter. This eliminates the time and effort of taking down and putting up screens every fall and spring.

ATTRACTIVE
Attractive, sturdy, properly installed storm windows, in addition to improving the appearance of your house, conserving energy and making you more comfortable, will reduce the level of exterior noise entering the house and protect the original windows from the elements.

By decreasing the original window's exposure to inclement weather, an aluminum storm window will reduce the maintenance and repainting costs of original windows.

Some tips for storage

"If I only had more space!"

How often have you made this lament? If it's not in your budget to add on to your home, or home is a small apartment, here are little, but effective ways to make the most of available space.

Store out-of-season bedding, linens in underbed storage units to gain space in your linen closet.

No need to reserve valuable cupboard space for pet supplies such as brushes or shampoos; put them in attractive baskets placed in random spots such as window sills or the tops of cabinets; they'll be decorative touches that serve a function as well.

Use pegboard for paneling kitchen or closet walls; pegboard hooks can hold anything from pots to parasols!

Let that table do double-duty by covering it with an attractive, floor-length cloth ... you can store little-used items underneath!

Cabinet doors offer handy space for storing many small items such as flat utensils.

A broom closet door also has space-saving potential; hang a shoe bag on the back of the door to store items such as cleaning supplies.
