M.P. opened Markham Fair

"Facilities second to none". Those were the words used by M.P. Anthony Roman to describe Markham Fair 1984. Mr. Roman, former Mayor of Markham and Chairman of the Region of York, officially opened the Fair, Wednesday night, assisted by President Bryan Armstrong, Bryan's wife Janie and their three children, Jason, Sarah and Jessica.

Maple tree planted as living memorial

STOUFFVILLE — A maple tree, in memory of Bruce Carr of Stouffville, has been planted on the site of Bruce's Mill Conservation Area. This memorial, a tribute to Mr Carr by members of staff, is meant to recognize his love for the place and his interest in activities there.

This interest, was related mainly to the maple syrup operation that occurs there every spring. He gave of his time as an active volunteer, working shoulder to shoulder with employees on staff.

A suitable plaque has also been erected. The 'gift' was planned as a surprise. However, when Mr Carr's condition deteriorated and re-admission to hospital was deemed necessary, Murray McDowell, the Area's superintendent, told him about the project. He was pleased.

Bruce Carr was born in Toronto, the son of Preston and Florence (Richardson) Carr. He farmed on the 7th Conc. of Markham before moving to Mount Albert and then to Pickering. Following government expropriation of their Pickering property, he moved to Ninth Line South, Stouffville.

Mr Carr underwent surgery in January and again in June. In the months between operations and since, Mrs Carr found support through people like Rev. Bruce Aitken of Melville United Church and Betty Brown, R.R. 1, Unionville as well as neighbors and friends. Mrs Carr cared for her husband at home up until two days before his death.

Mr Carr was a man of great faith. He attended church regularly and served as both an elder, a steward and clerk of session. When problems arose, he was known as "the peacemaker".

These and other personal tributes were recalled by Rev. Gordon Hunter and Rev. Aitken at the funeral service, Sept. 24 in Melville United Church. The sanctuary was filled. Interment was at Melville Cemetery. Pall-bearers were Brian and Barry Carr, Brian Crozier, Murray McDowell, Chuck Kean and Murray Brown.

Besides his wife, the former Lillian Rate, Mr Carr is survived by a brother, Albert, R.R. 1, Unionville and a sister, Dorothy (Mrs Fred Carter), Boyer Street, Stouffville. He was predeceased by a brother, George.
