

Sheep-shearing skill

Although he dislikes the word 'professional', Wilf Bowes of Maple displayed that kind of skill during a sheep-shearing presentation at Markham Fair. While Bowes removed the sheep's 'coat', Diane Ward of Whitchurch-Stouffville provided a step-by-step commentary on the operation. —Jim Thomas

Lovely quilts draw praise

Brenda Rennie's quilts were the talk of Markham Fair. Descriptives like "beautiful", "lovely" and "what a lot of work" were heard among the throng of ladies (and men) who viewed her exhibits.

Norm) Rennie, Main Street East, (R.R. 3), Stouffville, credits her mother, Gladys Rennie with teaching her everything she knows about quilting. She was obviously an attentive pupil.

Brenda won a first with her "Four Seasons' entry and a third on her entry depicting "Bears". One will go to son Scotty, age three and the other to Mark, age one. "They took up the whole living room," Brenda explained, "I simply moved the furniture out and the quilts in." The "Four Seasons" masterpiece took almost three months to complete, Brenda said.

She had to draw the pictures to size before starting, and this took considerable time.

Previously, she had done only crib quilts.

It's strictly a hobby, Brenda said, with a practical application. What thousands looked over, Scott and Mark will sleep under.
