'Ignorance of parents'

Dear Editor:
I am referring to your last week's front page story under the heading: "Parent Says Beer Sold Illegally."
If I don't get served at the beer store, I can get whatever I ordered within 15 minutes from the time I get turned down. So what really angers me is that most parents always figure that no, my kid doesn't drink! You'd be shocked at your little teenaged weekend warrior who is either drinking beer or smoking pot on Friday and Saturday nights. But, should anything go wrong during or after the minor has had an alcoholic beverage, then the majority of parents are so quick to start blaming other individuals for their own faults.

kid is responsible or not. But maybe a better understanding of what your teenager wants, will prevent your family from receiving a knock at the front door and, upon opening it find a police officer with his head hung low, bringing to your family the worst news, that your son or daughter has been killed in an auto accident.

Signed,
A Minor

Why can't your teenager stay home and drink with some friends in the comfort of your own home? This way, he or she can't get hurt or hurt anyone else. Instead, the minor is practically forced out, into a situation called the ever-so-popular "booze and cruise".

Now don't get me wrong, I'm not saying the age limit of 19 should be lowered or raised, and I am only 17. You know if your
