

The First Uxbridge Pathfinders are helping to publicize the 75th anniversary of the worldwide Girl Guide movement. Last week the girls donated a commemorative book to the library at Claremont Public School. Here, members Sharon Uzzell (left) and Pam Jackson (right) present the special edition to librarian Yvonne Poyser. It's entitled 'Celebration — 75 Years of Challenge and Change' —Chris Shanahan

Job Club spawns proposal

CLAREMONT — Claremont may soon see the development of a new small business. Participants in the hamlet's weekly Job Club are working on a proposal that would create several jobs for the unemployed in the Claremont-Brougham area.

The proposal is designed to provide employment opportunities for those who, by reason of a physical or emotional disability or lack of experience, have had difficulty finding and keeping a job, explained organizer Rev. Douglas Varey.

The Club intends to create a non-profit enterprise that would cover its production costs and pay a basic wage, he said.

Interested local residents and business people will be invited to support the undertaking by purchasing a share in the company and by serving as a community resource group.

Several product and service ideas have already been discussed, according to Rev. Varey. It appears likely that furniture and antique refinishing, on a contract basis or for resale to antique dealers, will be the company's initial product.

Interested Claremont-Brougham citizens are invited to meet with the planning group on Tuesday, March 5. The session will be held at the Community Hall beginning at 10 a.m. In the meantime, Job Club members continue to gather each Tuesday at 9 a.m. in the Community Hall. All who are unemployed, underemployed or interested in returning to the job market are welcome to attend for practical assistance in their job search.

For more information contact Rev. Varey at 649-2400.
