Stouffville I.D.A.

Brand new look

STOUFFVILLE — The Stouffville I.D.A. has undergone a major facelift. The building's interior has been completely modernized.
 Renovations to update the store's appearance have been going on since Cliff Aiken sold the business early in January of this year.
 In the past six months, new shelves and counters have been installed, new carpet and new fixtures put in place.
 The new owners are Rob Croxall, Harry Porter, Gord Davie and Vince Purificati. The four young businessmen also own three other stores outside Whitchurch-Stouffville.

The new co-owners purchased the drug store here because they feel Stouffville has tremendous growth potential.
 Growth is coming to Stouffville, says owner-manager, Rob Croxall. "We want the store to grow with the town."
 Besides altering the facade of the building, the owners are striving to make the business more customer oriented. Prices have been sharply reduced on many items.
 "Our main goal is to provide customers personal service," says Rob. Further changes are contemplated in the weeks ahead.
