

That sinking feeling

The operator of this tractor probably felt like the painter who backed himself into a corner. The driver obviously ran out of room in the middle of a pond on the Jim Sabiston property at Bloomington. It's not known if he elected to escape on foot or swim.

Dragged to his death

After three years search continues

It was during the early-morning hours of Aug. 7, 1982 that Clark Major of R.R. 1, Brooklyn was dragged to his death.

The victim, well-known and highly regarded in the community, had attempted to apprehend the driver of a van after several tires were stolen from in front of the family home.

No arrest has been made despite countless hours of investigation and police checks all across the country.

Mr. Major, on that fateful night three years ago, arrived at the laneway entrance as the vehicle, believed to be an 1979 or 1980 GMC blue van, pulled away. It's believed the victim attempted to grab the keys from the ignition. He was pulled about 400 feet down the road.

In a relentless effort to find the person or persons responsible, the Durham Board of Police Commissioners offered a $10,000 reward, without success.

Detective Bernard Fitzpatrick says the search is still going on but the laps in time has made the investigation more difficult.

"Everything gets cold; people tend to forget and those who may have seen something could have moved," he said.

While several good leads have come to dead-ends, Detective Fitzpatrick claims a couple of clues have come up recently that are being followed. He's convinced that eventually, the case will be solved.

"We won't close the books until it is," he concluded.

Where credit is due

Dear Jim:

The words of praise related to our Business Improvement Area, (B.I.A.), are greatly appreciated. The cost of these visual improvements is borne by the merchants who are members. The members and executive of the B.I.A. are very proud of the appearance of our Main Street.

The credit for the flowers is due Jim Craven and family of Craven Acres Green houses. They take great pride in the care and maintenance of the B.I.A. It is people working together for a more beautiful town that is convincing many that Whitechurch-Stouffville is THE PLACE TO LIVE!

Sincerely,
Fran Sainsbury,
