

Dancers coming to town

An entertaining line-up awaits Markham theatre goers during the next week at the new Markham Theatre for Performing Arts.

The Neptune Theatre production of Don Messer's Jubilee winds up today with shows at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. after a successful week-long run.

Starting Monday, one of Canada's foremost contemporary choreographers will bring his company to the stage for one show only.

The Danny Grossman Dance company will be present a show Mr. Grossman has designed specifically to celebrate the opening of the new theatre.

A previously scheduled second show on Tuesday has been cancelled.

From Wednesday to Sunday, the Hilltop Musical Theatre Co. will present Trial by Jury.

Calling singles

An non-denominational Christian singles group is forming in the Markham and Unionville areas and the first meeting is slated for tonight, 8 p.m. at the Markham Community Library.

Speaker for the evening is Phil Paxton, who will speak on Singles in the 80s. Glenda Paxton is guest soloist. Admission is $2.50 per person and the evening is open to single, divorced, separated and widowed people.
