Chili a great meal

Decorating a Christmas tree brings out the holiday spirit in everyone. The excitement of the season comes alive in glittering ornaments, shimmering tinsel and twinkling lights.

Whether your tree-trimming plans include the family or friends and neighbors too, you'll want to serve them a festive meal in keeping with the joy of the moment.

What better way than to delight the eye and tantalize the tastebuds than with a authentic Southwestern Chili fiesta that's as easy to make as hanging an ornament.

FIESTA CHILI

- 1 can (15 oz.) chili with beans
- 1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes, cut up
- 1 can (15 oz.) tamales
- Cheddar cheese, shredded

Combine chili and tomatoes in medium saucepan or Dutch oven. Remove papers from tamales, slice into bite size pieces, gently stir into chili.

Heat over low heat until hot, stirring occasionally. Serve with a garnish of cheese and a tossed green salad.

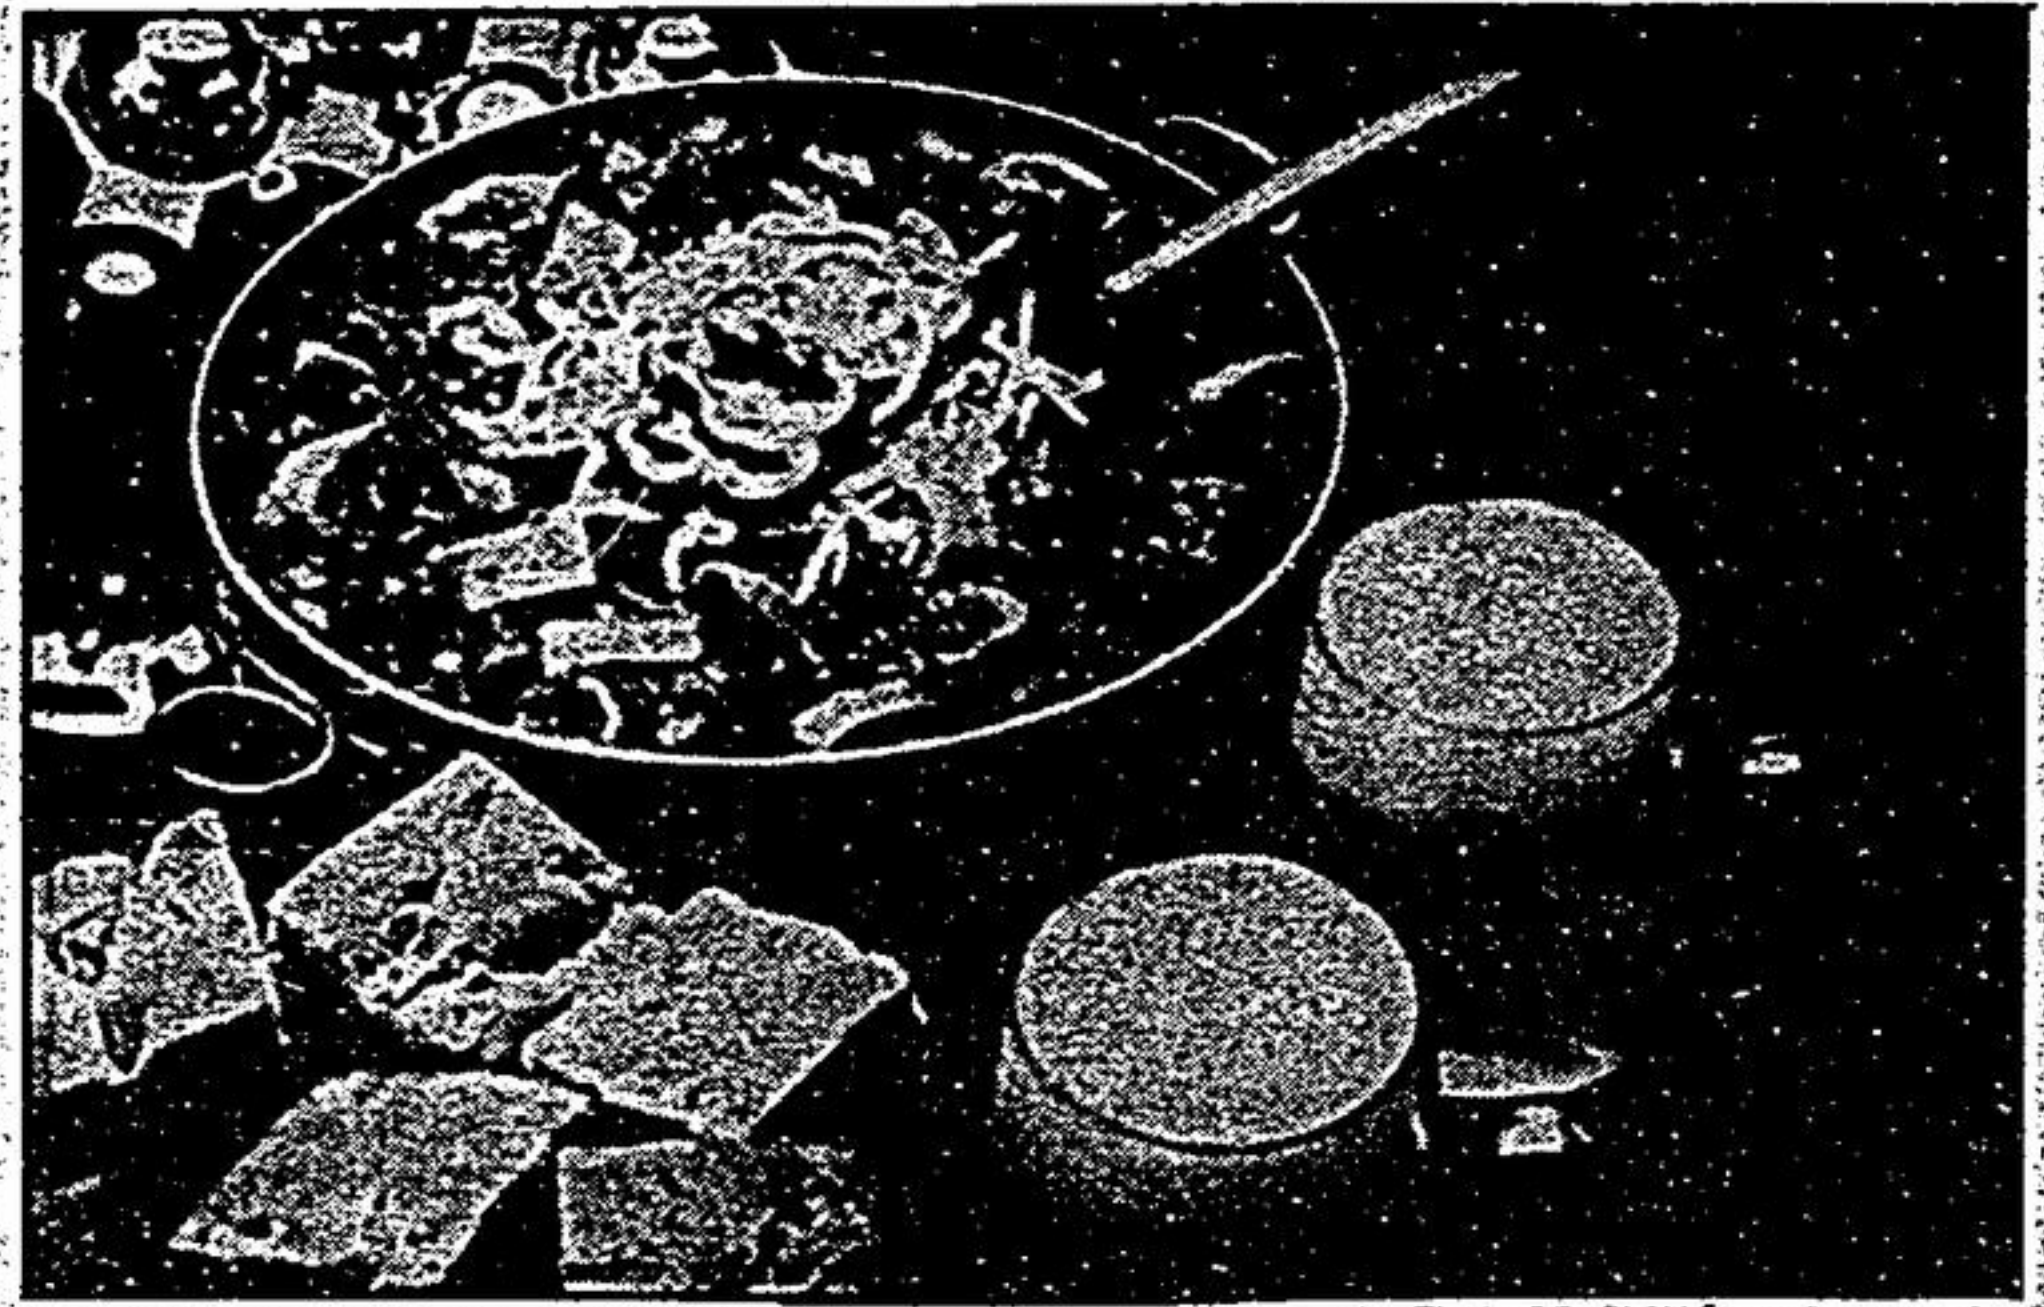

Makes 4 - 6 servings.

MEXICAN CORN BREAD

- 2 packages (8 1/2 oz. each) corn muffin mix
- 2 cans (4 oz. each) sweet green chilies, well drained and chopped

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Prepare corn muffin mix according to package directions. Stir in green chilies. Pour into a 9 x 9 inch square pan.

Bake for 15 to 20 minutes. Turn out of pan and cut into squares. Serve alongside chili. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Hot stuff. A sure way to be ready when guests drop in over the Christmas season is to serve them chili. Chili made in the southwestern U.S. style makes a great festive meal.
