Bishop blesses St. Pat's school

More than 250 people turned out to watch the official opening and blessing of St. Patrick's Separate School's new addition Wednesday night.

The addition, which was added to the east side of the school, consists of a gymnasium, offices and six classrooms. It opened last November.

Bishop Robert B. Clune addressed the audience and carried out the official blessing.

Other dignitaries on hand for the ceremony included Mayor Carole Bell, Director of Education John Zupancic, Father B. Jobin of St. Patrick's Church, trustees June Mallon, Joseph McGlynn, Terry Ryan and Gino Rosati and several government representatives.

Entertainment was provided by the St. Patrick's School choir.

Principal Dave Callaghan described the proceedings as a total success.
