Top contributors to athletics at Summitview

Former Summitview staff teacher Jim Fletcher is now a Phys. Ed. instructor at Stouffville Dist. Secondary School. However, his memory lives on through the donation of a plaque "for outstanding contribution to the Summitview athletic program." This year, the winners were Scott McKinley, 13, of Lori Avenue, and Karen Carr, 14, of Dorman Drive. — Jim Thomas

Neighborly Notes

By JIM THOMAS

Unfortunate

It's not likely Orchard Park principal John Hincks will retain a very good impression of this community. After nine years of faithful leadership, we allowed him to depart without as much as a formal thank you. This ingratitude on the part of local parents (of which I am one), points up the need for better liaison between the home and the school. We should hang our collective heads.

Week's quote

Under "Quote of the Week" the following comment was made by Carol Brodie at The Bahai-sponsored Pet Show in Stouffville, June 28. Entries were being requested for the "Look-Alike" category, a class where the master (or mistress) most resembles his/her dog, cat, goat, frog, etc. Said Carol: "I'd like to go in but I'm afraid I might win!"

Gift-wrapped

Four baby robins will soon arrive, gift-wrapped, in a nest at the front of the Testa Villa Apartments, Albert Street, South. Ma and Pa Robin, in preparing their summer home, obviously picked up several robins from a nearby property and wove them into their comfortable abode. The strands, however, have been left to hang, giving the nest a gift-wrapped look.

Not the town

Construction work on the Stouffville Tennis Courts, raised a few eyebrows among those attending the outdoor Community Worship Service, June 28. "Not our people," Mayor Fran Sainsbury, was quick to point out. Apparently, out of seven days in the week, the contractor could find no other time but the Sabbath to fit the work into his schedule. Something wrong!

You're out!

Rev. Chris Sorley may be retired from regular preaching duties but he hasn't lost his sense of humor. As the guest pastor at the Community Worship Service in Stouffville, June 28, he said he wished to time his sermon so as not to interfere with the Slo-Pitch Tournament scheduled to resume at 12:30 p.m. "or someone might holler strike three!"

Lucky Tony!

I thought all contestants in the Miss Whitchurch-Stouffville Pageant were excellent when it came to impromptu speeches, possibly one of the most difficult parts of the contest. We especially liked Sandra Cleo's reply to the query: "If you had one wish, what might it be?" Said Sandra: "I'd like to play third base with the Blue Jays, Tony Fernandez." Public relations being what it is in the Jays' front office, Howard Starkman may just arrange it.

Open season

Female joggers, it seems, run risks doing their thing along rural roads. There are a lot of weirdos out there who take delight in harassing young ladies in the seclusion of the countryside. Such an incident occurred Wednesday on the Bethesda Road near Hwy. 48. York Regional Police are investigating.

Co-op student

The Co-op Program at Stouffville Dist. Secondary School is proving extremely popular. It allows students to enter the real world of various career courses. Eighteen-year-old Lisa Fockler, a Grade 12 student at S.D.S.S., is coming to The Tribune in September. Lisa is the daughter of Bruce and Anna Fockler, Ringwood.

I said it

While local physicians undoubtedly gave Mayor Fran Sainsbury a pain by demonstrating in the Town Park on the arrival of Premier and Mrs. David Peterson, June 25, it wasn't Mayor Sainsbury who said it — I did. They gave me a pain, also.

A warning!

Novel licence plate stickers interest me. I saw one Saturday on the back of a Toyota on Main Street, Stouffville, that read: "Don't follow me, I'm lost." And he was. The driver was looking for the Sales Barn.

C'mon kids!

If the Town is hesitant to provide recreation in Stouffville for its young people, it's because Council is never certain of support. For several years, I've heard cries of give us roller skating. So Stouffville has roller skating every Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the new Rec. Centre. But where are the kids? The facilities are excellent and the admission fee is reasonable. It's a fun sport for all ages. Give it a try.

Watch for it

If everything goes according to plan, the new Ringwood Restaurant and Gas Bar will open this Saturday. Located at one of the busiest corners in (rural) Ontario, the half-million dollar investment is almost certain of success. A & S Construction of Stouffville have done a beautiful job, both inside and out; an excellent improvement to the site.

Big car show

The Antique and Classic Car Show will once again be held at the Whitchurch-Stouffville Museum in Vandonor. The date is Sunday, Aug. 10, beginning at 10 a.m. Craft people may display their wares on location for a booth rental fee of $15. The number to call is 727-8954.
