

There was food a-plenty

There was food a-plenty, both Saturday and Sunday, when the Mennonite Churches hosted a Bicentennial Festival at Harborfront, Toronto. Two of the many willing workers are shown above.—Peter

Fourth Line News

Two injured in accident

By MARJORIE WOODLAND
FOURTH LINE — A recent two-car collision at the intersection of Hwy. 47 and the Fourth Line, involved occupants Frank Stewart and Mrs Tustin. Neither driver was seriously injured but both vehicles were badly damaged. Mr Stewart is presently getting around with the aid of crutches.

man, this Sunday, (Aug. 10). Mr Robert White and Miss Ethel White are closing out their apartments in Stouffville and moving into Eldercare Manor, Main Street and O'Brien Avenue. These long-time former Goodwood residents operated the Goodwood Mill for many years. The Pet Cemetery, now owned and managed by Dr. Alan Secord, is located on the former White family property.

The congregation of Goodwood United Church will welcome their new pastor, Rev. Nancy Water-

It was good to visit Parkview Home in Stouffville, recently, and find some former Goodwood folk in good spirits. Morley Symes and Irene Alderson were interested in catching up on news from our community.

Not forgotten

Dear Mr Thomas:
None of us even remotely associated with Whitchurch-Highlands School will ever forget Tara Dow.

The regular meeting of the Baptist Mission Circle will be held at the home of Mrs Moore, Tues., Aug. 12. Carol Moore is the program convener.

She was everybody's friend. She never allowed her radiant beauty, even apparent in Grades 7 and 8, to go to her head. She was always 'one of the girls'.

Mr and Mrs Jack Symes enjoyed a change of scenery last week, touring various parts of Ontario. They found plenty to see and do within our beautiful province.

Whatever career she chooses, she'll undoubtedly be a success. I wish her the best.

Sincerely,
Evelyn Malcolm,
R.R. 3, Newmarket

The following is a short message I wrote for a special friend:

Blood money

Dear Editor:
I commend Switzerland for her unprecedented move to put a hold on some of the Marcos and Duvalier loot, money stolen from their poor countrymen.

A motto hangs before me, "This too will pass away." A reminder of the flight of time, No matter how sad the day, Though all has crashed about you, You feel such utter defeat. Remember now His promise, In Me you'll find comfort complete.

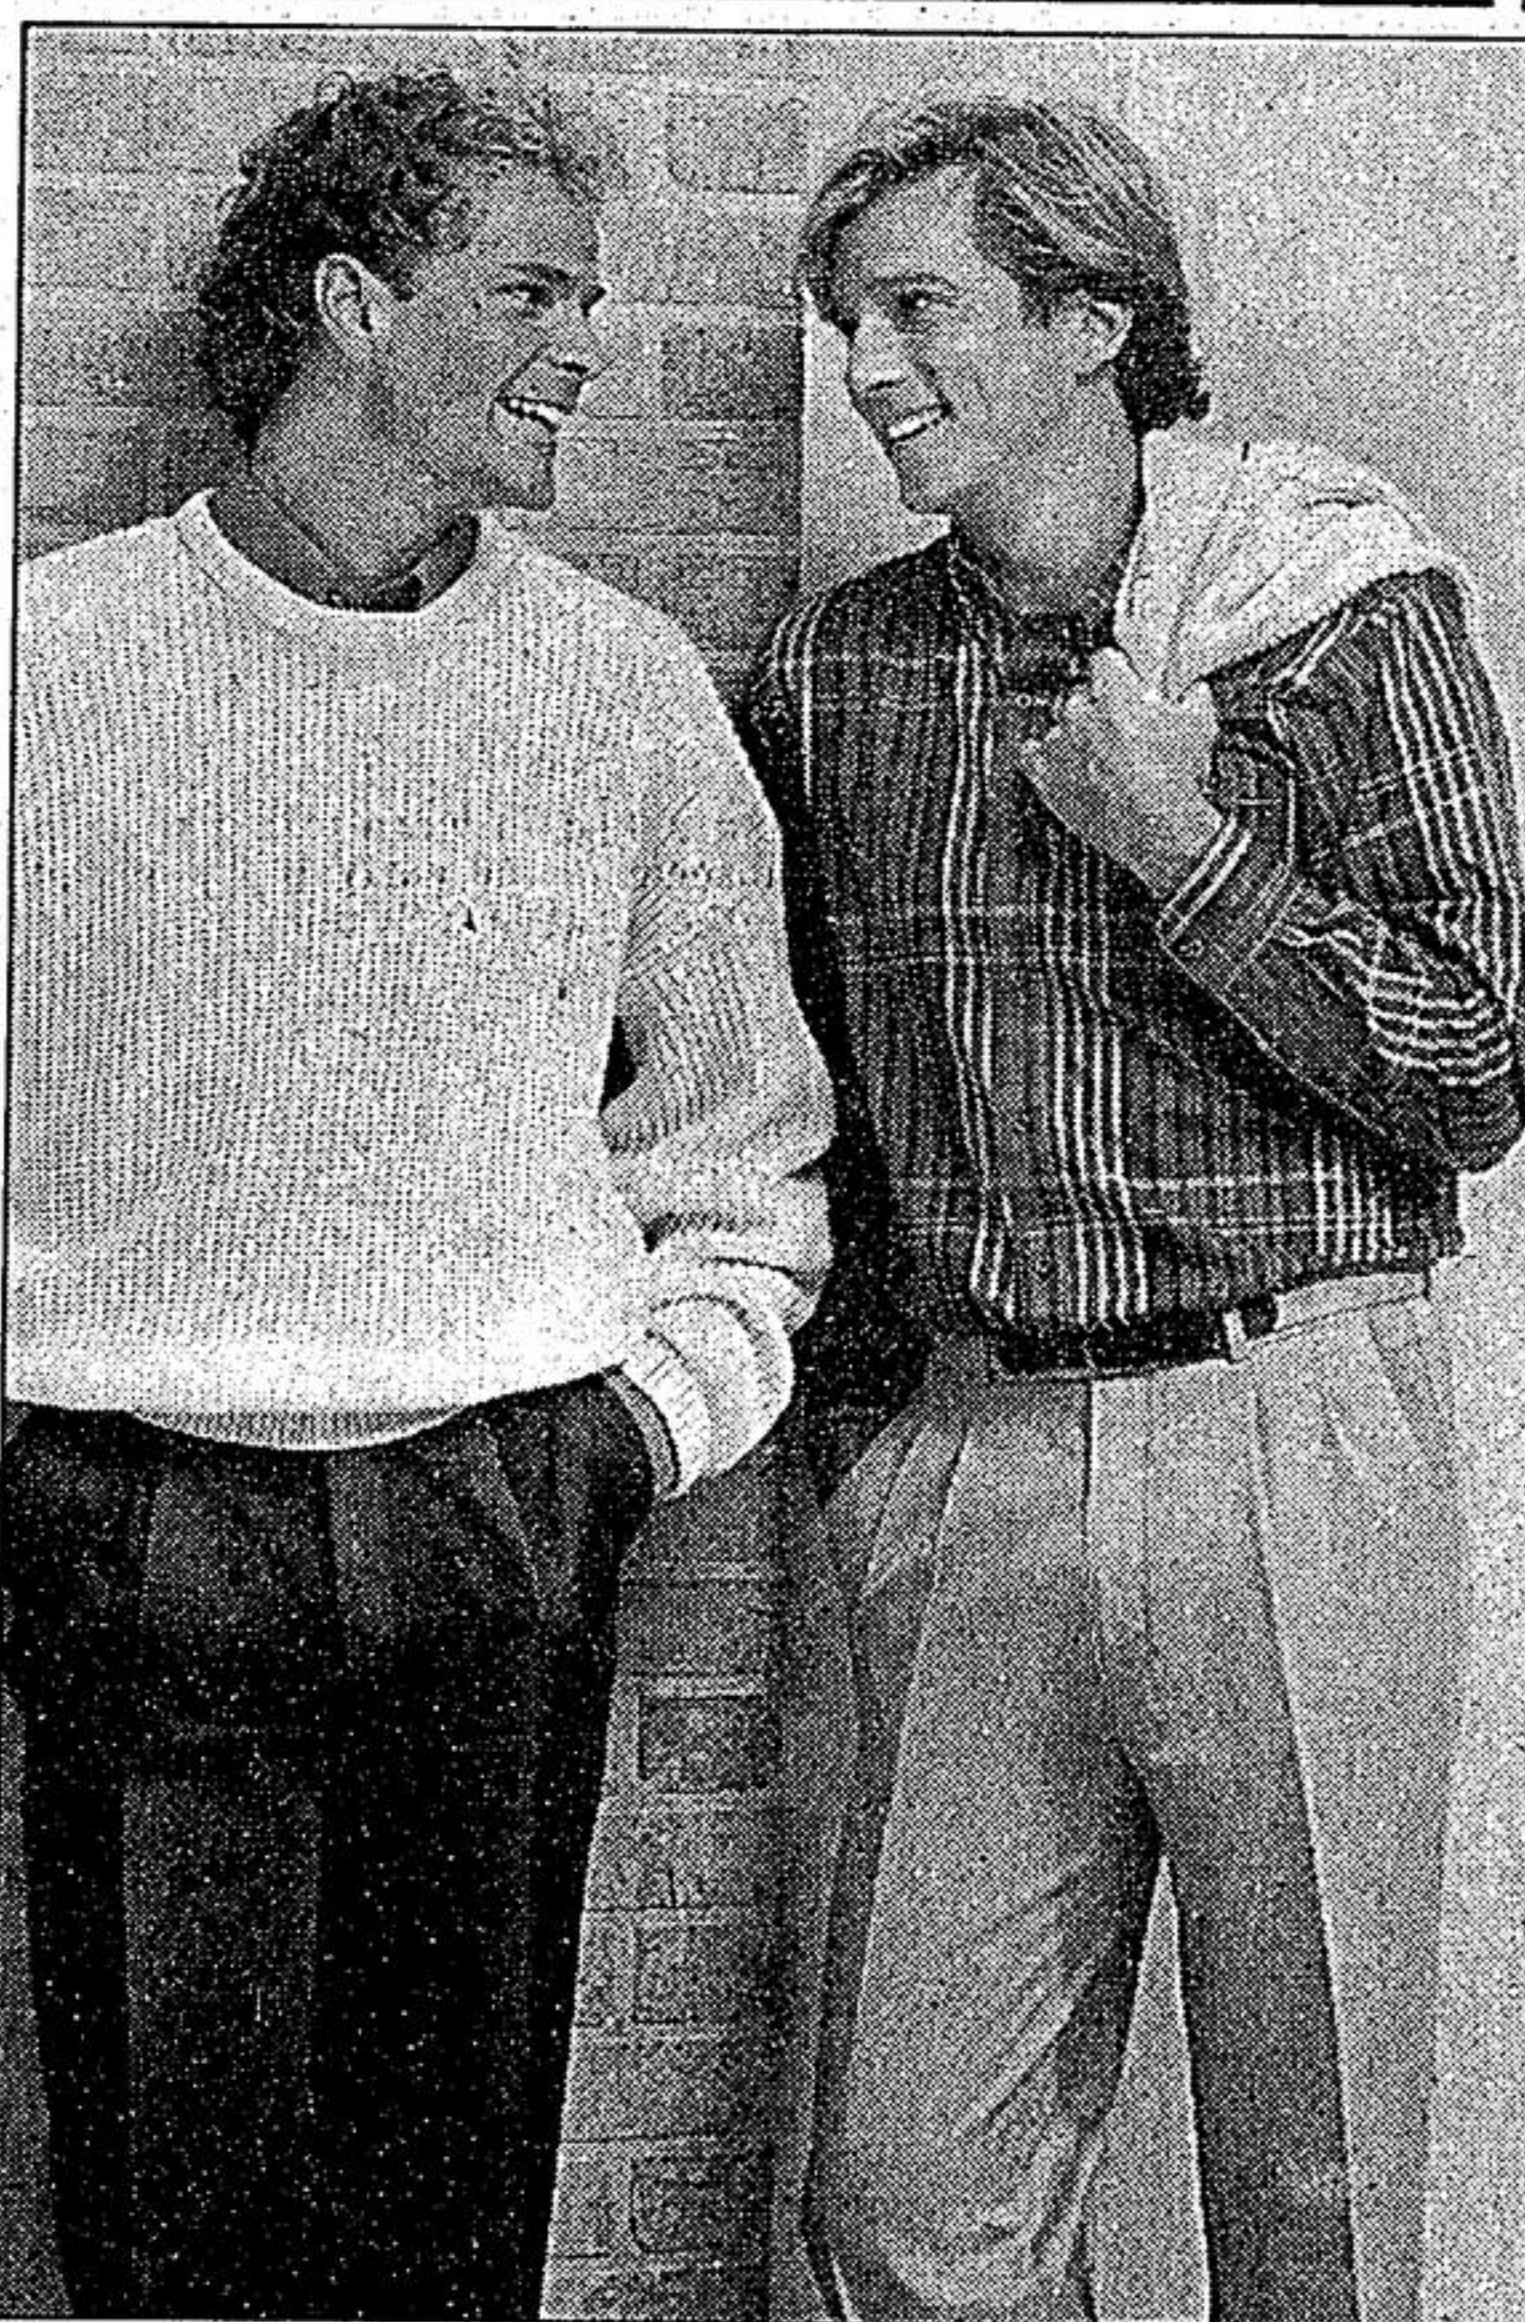

However, tens of thousands of other criminals, tax-dodgers, corrupt officials and rulers, who bleed the world's poor countries as well as the economies of developed nations, are still provided safe haven for their ill-gotten fortunes by Switzerland.

Home of the International Red Cross and many other reputable international agencies, Switzerland is generally considered a champion of the cause of the poor and down-trodden brethren of our global village. People of that beautiful country that I have come across are conscientious and compassionate. But when it comes to their notorious banking system, which immensely harms the world's poor and to some extent us, (I bet there must be hundreds, if not thousands of Canadians with Swiss bank accounts), greed gets the better of the Swiss and they turn a blind eye to it.

This attitude of the Swiss reminds me of a quote by Leo Tolstoy: "I sit on the man's back, making him carry me, choking him; yet I assure myself and all others that I feel very sorry for him and want to lighten his load by any means possible—except getting off his back."

All governments and individuals must exert pressure on Switzerland and other bankers who harbor blood money.

Sincerely,
Bish Bhagwanani
