Young and old

There was a mixture of young and old Saturday when Grant and Betty Turner held their auction sale at Park Drive North and Main Street, Stouffville. Here, seven-year-old Elisa Fisher, daughter of Mr and Mrs Gary Fisher, Main Street West, Stouffville, tries out an age-old coronet believed used by Mr Turner's father.

Ten-year-old Jennifer Brewer of Pickering, a great-niece of Grant and Betty Turner, holds an antique violin minus the bow and a couple of strings.

Mayor Fran Sainsbury

Not 'charged'

The Aug. 9 issue of The Tribune Weekender carried a story related to a public meeting on proposed development in the hamlet of Bloomington.

The heading on the news item read: "Mayor Charged With Conflict."

Mayor Fran Sainsbury has taken exception to the word 'charged', claiming some readers have concluded she's been formally accused of wrong-doing.

This is not the case and The Tribune Weekender regrets the association.

The suggestion of conflict was voiced by one person in the audience following which Mayor Sainsbury disassociated herself from further discussion and took a seat in the audience.

The Sainsbury home is located on the Ninth Line, south of the property where build-up is proposed.

STELLAR. PUT YOUR FAMILY IN FIRST CLASS FOR THE PRICE OF ECONOMY.

Stellar is a big hit with families. It has a lot of extras you don't pay extra for.

Extras like child-proof rear door locks. A built-in anchor to hold a child's seat. Three-point safety belts. Power central door locks (GSL). Power windows (GSL). Other first class extras include dual outside mirrors, rear seat heating ducts, clock, styled steel wheels... All standard.

Families also like what's inside Stellar's trunk. Loads of room. Full carpeting. Courtesy night light. Plus a full-size spare tire. (A Michelin all-season, steel-belted radial.)

To see this affordable luxury car in action, visit your nearby Hyundai dealer. And bring your family, too.
