District Representative D-Lea Kitler presents Jason Morin with his plaque for being named Carrier of the Month.

He's no novice as delivery boy

Although he's relatively new to Markham and the Economist and Sun, Jason Morin couldn't be called a novice when it comes to delivering newspapers.

The 13-year-old Grade 9 student at Markham District High School was a carrier in Ottawa before moving to Markham with his family earlier this year.

He's Economist and Sun/Tribune and Weekender's first Carrier of the Month.

In an interview Jason said he enjoys being a carrier and he feels "the money's good for what I have to do." He has been delivering 30 Wednesday papers and 105 Weekenders since April.

"The people (at the Economist and Sun) seem to be involved with the carriers," he said.

Jason said that he's saving money for a Commodore 64 computer, but he also uses some of his collections for spending money.

His hobbies include skateboarding and he enjoys watching baseball and football and his favorite subject in school is drama. Jason hopes to be an engineer when he grows up.

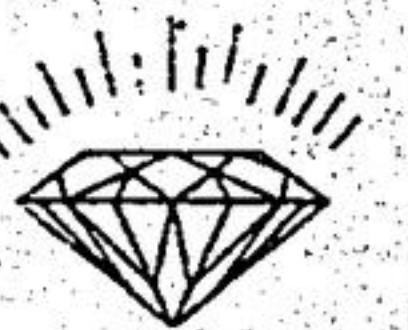

According to District Representative D-Lea Kitler, Jason was chosen Carrier of the Month because verifications on his route showed no problems, no complaints have been received and because he provides good overall service to his customers. He's also out canvassing for new subscribers on a regular basis.

"He's a good all-round kid," Ms. Kitler said.

As well as a plaque, Jason received a gift certificate for dinner for two at McDonald's Restaurant.
