Local racer goes to Virginia

Stouffville motocross racer Clint Crust returned early last week from a one-week training course in Virginia.

The 12-year-old 80 cc Schoolboy A competitor was the only Canadian out of 13 students who enrolled at Gary Bailey's Motocross School.

Learning motocross technique from an American whose son, David, is a prominent national racer and camping with other young racing enthusiasts was interesting, said Clint.

"We were taught how to sit properly on the bike, how to do corners faster, and jumping and starts." It's the double jumping and starts where Clint felt he most improved.

"There were a lot of inexperienced riders there, so (Gary) taught a lot of basics," explained the Stouffville athlete, adding he was anxious to learn proper passing technique, but his instructor never got around to it.
