The magic lives on

A fire-eater called The Amazing Tunka takes in a mouthful of flames during a street performance at last weekend's magic festival in Stouffville. When it was all over, the versatile multi-cultural entertainer took a big swig from a bottle of high-test mouthwash and began gargling to soothe his tender throat. This is just part of Tunka's repertoire which includes sword walking, fire limbo dancing, Hindu spike and balance glass acts as well as club and stage magic. — Chris Shanahan

Vandorf welcomes Matt

American actor Matt Dillon was on location in the Whitechurch-Stouffville hamlet of Vandorf this week to film part of a $14 million feature film called The Arm. The star of such movies as Rumble Fish, Flamingo Kid and Target was besieged by young autograph-seekers between scenes at the Vandorf Garage on Woodbine Ave. The Arm, a story about a young gambler coming of age in the 1950s, also features Tommy Lee Jones, Bruce Dern, Diane Lane and Tom Skerritt. Vandorf doubles as Rockport, Indiana, for the U.S. production; the majority of which is set in Chicago, Illinois. Columbia Pictures plans to release the movie in August of 1987. — Chris Shanahan
