Kim's a princess!

A Cedar Grove milk-maid is York Region's 1986-87 dairy princess.

Eighteen-year-old Kim Little, daughter of Markham's Barry and Aileen Little, received the judges' nod at a recent Pageant and Dance in Aurora.

Sandy Atkinson of Nobleton, winner for the past two years, officiated at the crowning ceremony.

A sparkling smile, a pleasant personality and a thorough knowledge of the dairy industry made Kim a logical choice. Her father's high-class Jersey herd is renowned across Canada.

The Markham District High School graduate is now enrolled in a two-year Animal Health Technology Course at Seneca College. Horseback riding's a favorite recreation. She's a member of the York Region Horse and Pony Club.

Kim sees her role as an ambassador for the Milk Marketing Board. She hopes to visit many schools in York Region.
