

Happy homecoming after long hospital stay for Kevin

A jubilant Joan Green reacquaints son Kevin with miniature Schnauzer Tia. Kevin, wearing a body cast, had been in hospital for nearly two months.

Homemade cake and barbecue cooking — that's what Kevin Green came home to after nearly two months in hospital.

"I was looking forward to the barbecue," said Kevin, who was welcomed home by a cheering crowd of friends and hockey teammates this week.

Kevin broke his right leg and ankle in a head-on car crash which killed hockey coach Paul Maybury on Feb. 2.

Mr. Maybury was driving his son, Todd Gerrard and Kevin Green to a minor bantam hockey game in Ajax when the collision occurred.

Kevin said the cumbersome cast is due to come off in about a month.

In the meantime Kevin has to sleep on a cot provided by the hospital since he can't get to his bedroom upstairs.

The Markham high school student spends his day greeting well-wishers, doing an hour of therapy and taking school lessons from a tutor.

Did he miss school?

"Not really," said Kevin.

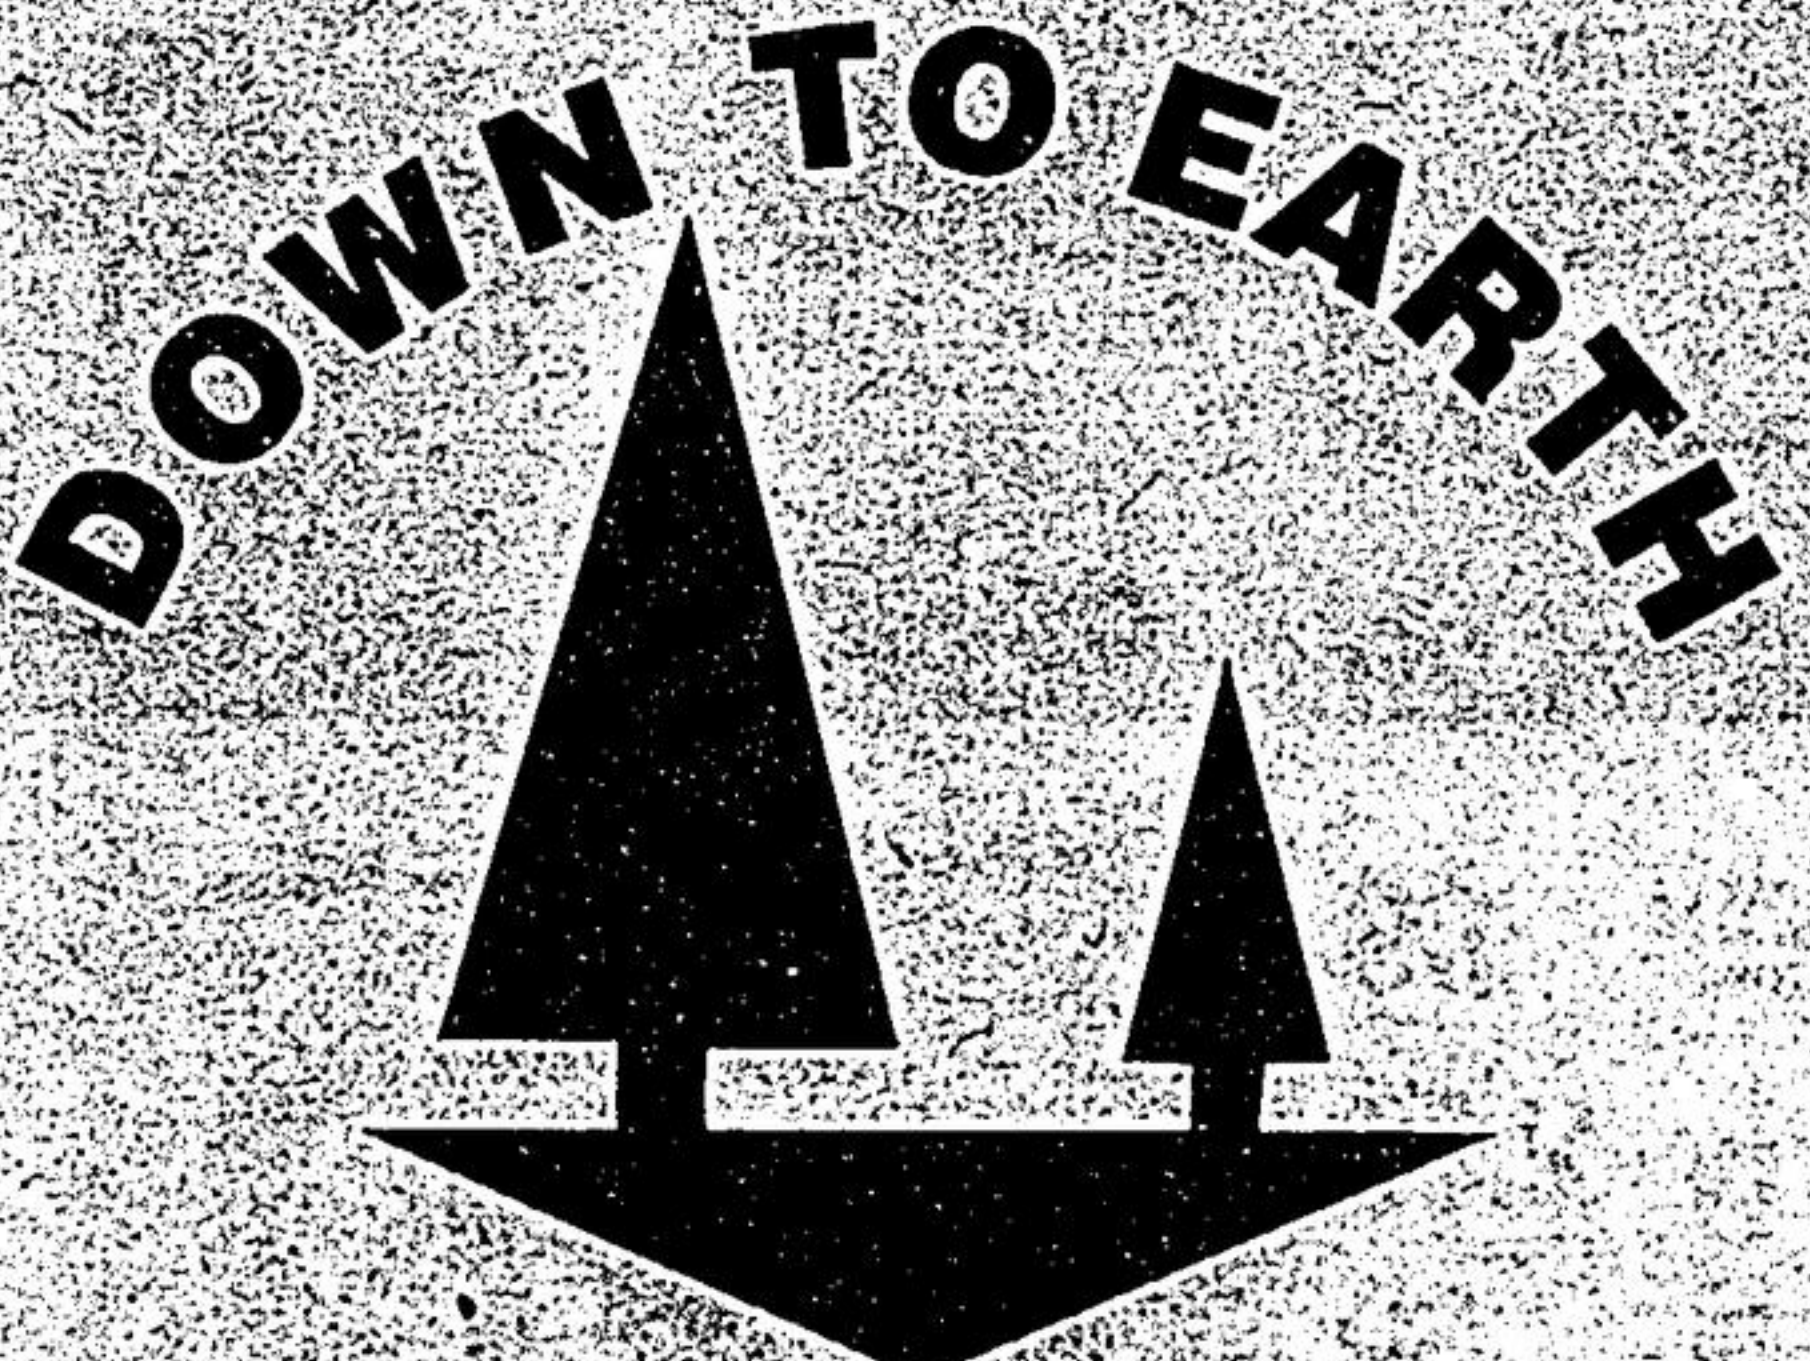

He did say, however, that he missed his mom's cooking.

Friends and hockey teammates give Kevin a round of applause as ambulance aids wheel him up to the front door of his home. Kevin was surprised by the large crowd of well-wishers who welcomed him.

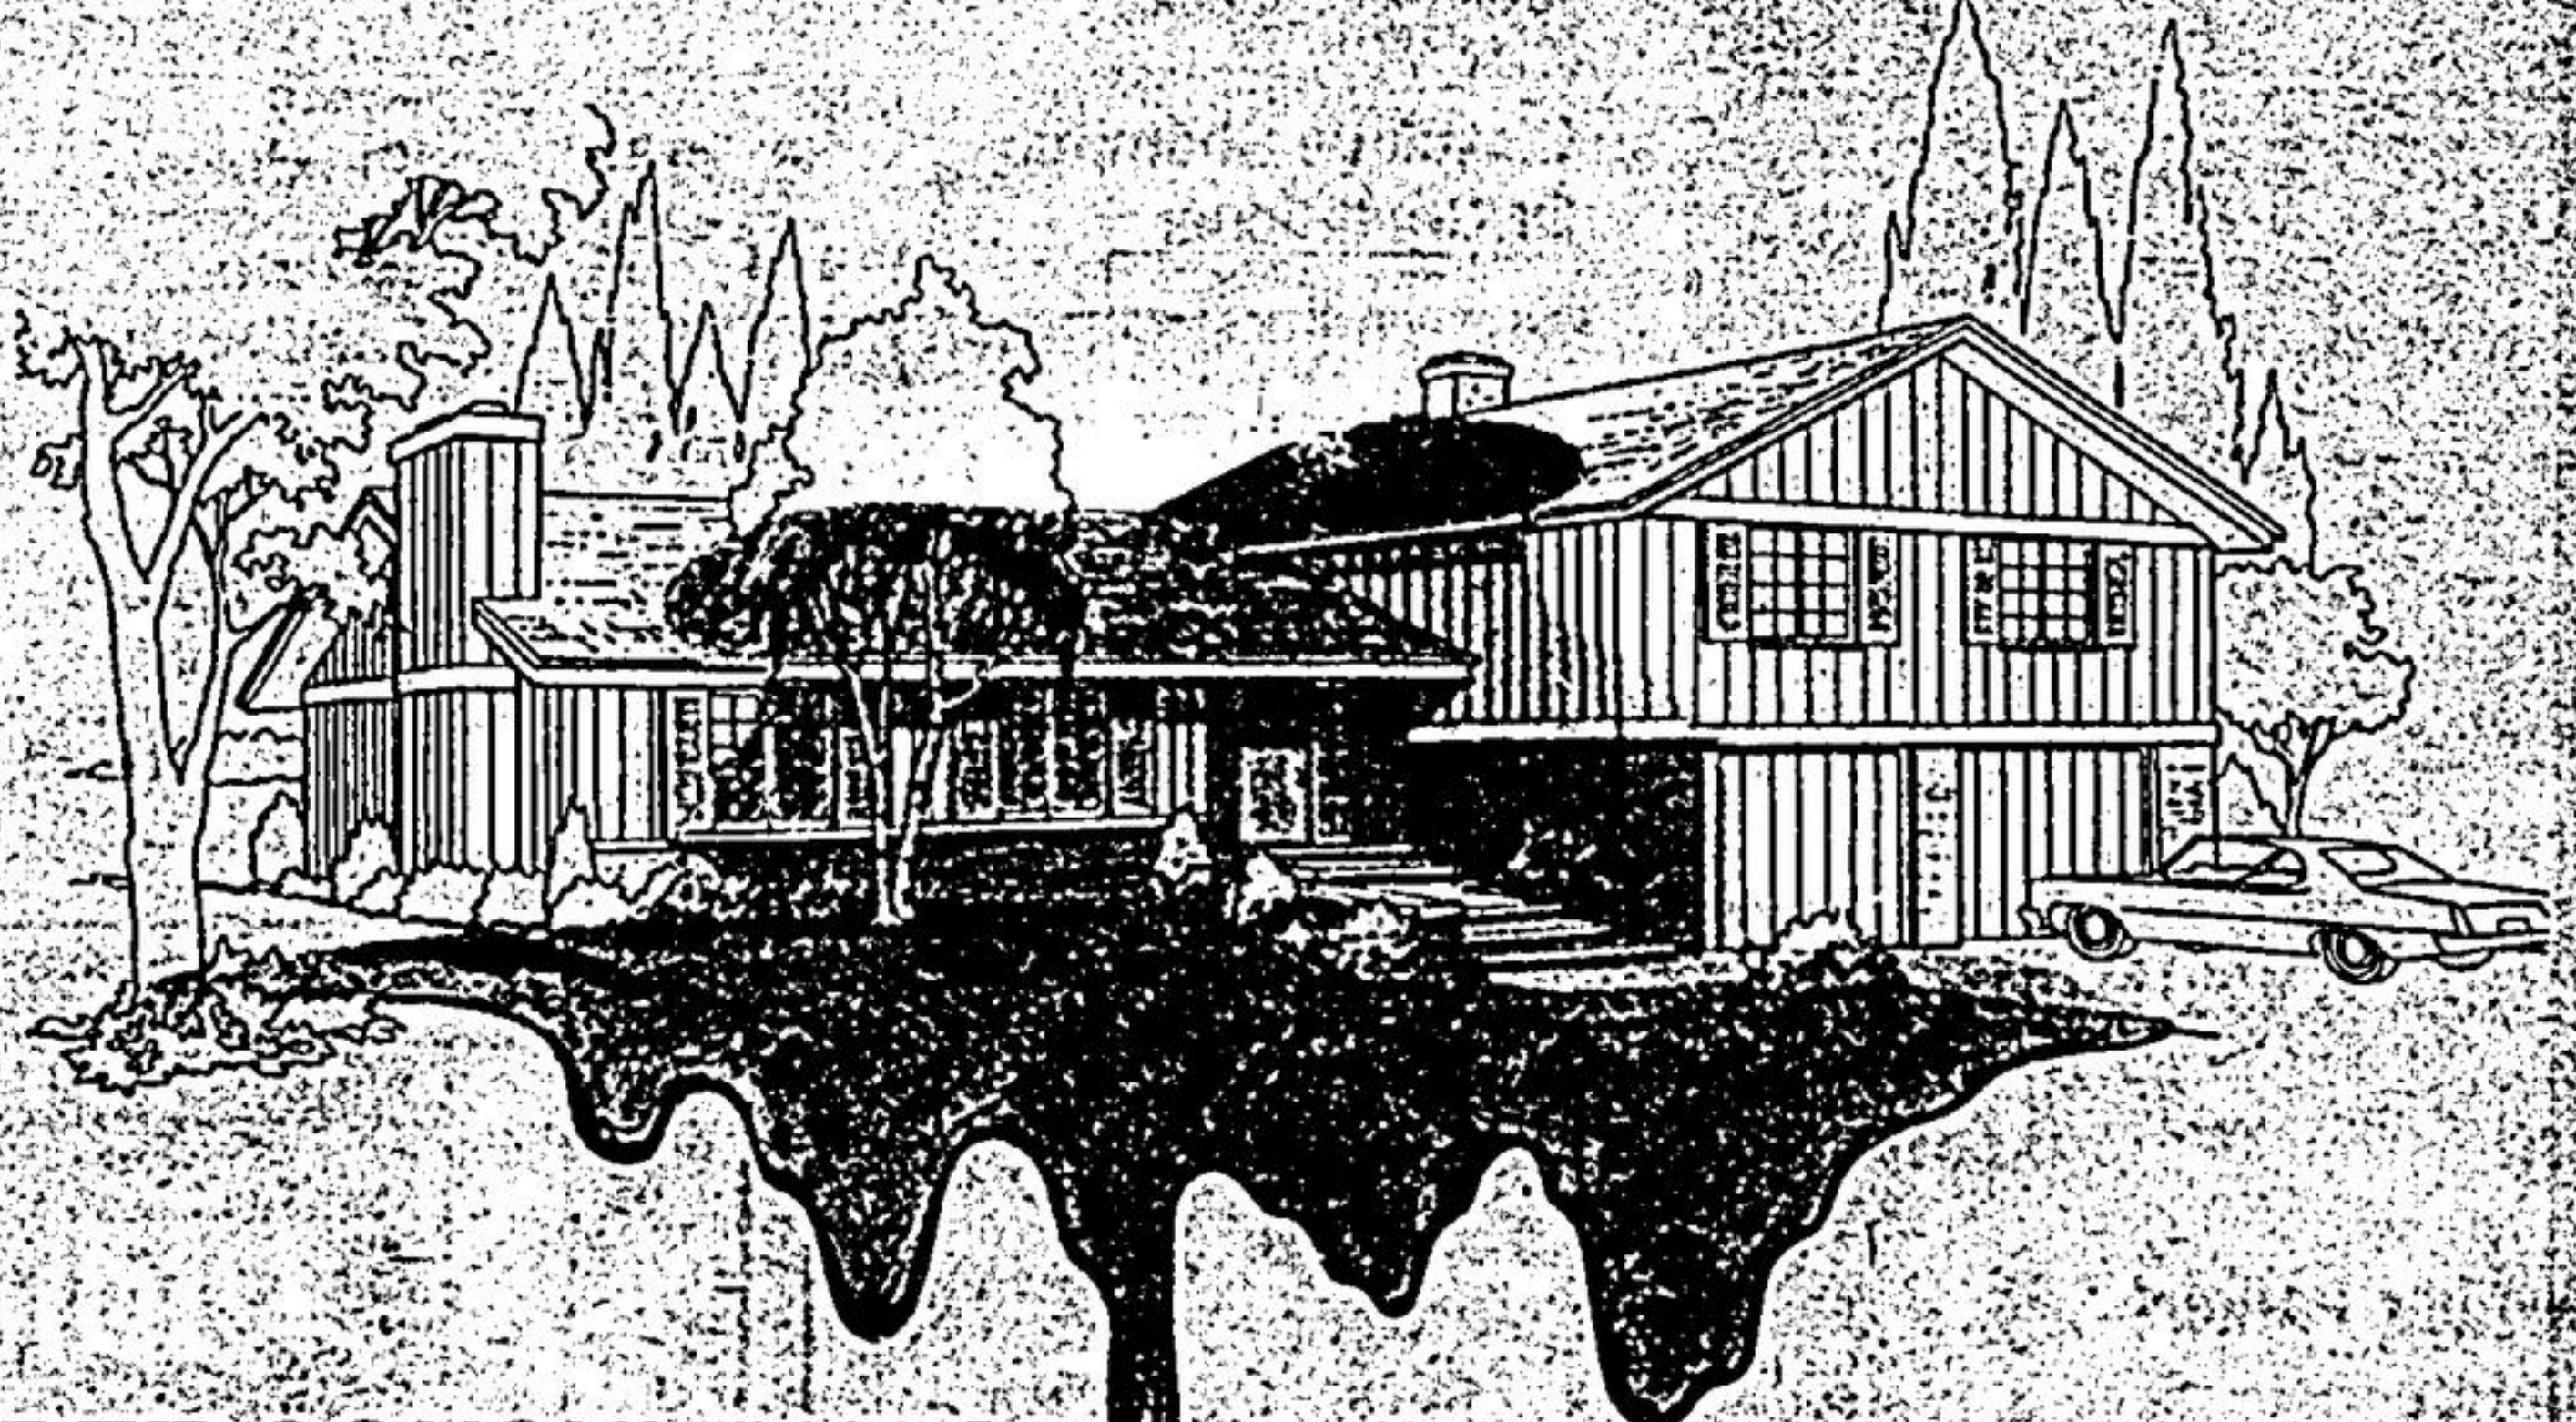

Inside familiar surroundings, Kevin moves about using a "walker" to keep his balance. Kevin's right leg and waist are still in a cast as a result of a serious car accident on Feb. 2 this year.
