At age 94, (her birthday was July 28), Myrtle Watson of Trinity Manor, Uxbridge is still in demand as a pianist. She often accompanies hymn-sings in the auditorium. Myrtle was once the organist at Goodwood United Church. —Jim Thomas

Myrtle's still playing

UXBRIDGE — Myrtle Watson, like many of her day, didn't receive many years of formal education. After Grade 8 (Senior Fourth), she left school and went to work.

However, instruction in one area, playing the piano, has been beneficial all her life. Myrtle marked her 94th birthday, July 28.

For years, Myrtle was the organist at Goodwood United Church. She also played the piano in the Sunday School. Now, several generations later, she's still a familiar figure at the keyboard for hymn-sings at Trinity Manor where she lives.

Born on a 200-acre farm south of Goodwood, Myrtle was one of four in the family of David and Florence Watson. She had two brothers, Charles and Everett, and a sister, Florence.

Myrtle appreciates the comforts of her cozy apartment but admits she misses the companionship of friends in Goodwood and Stouffville.

Both Nellie Harper and Eva Hoover keep me in touch," she explains. She's always happy to have folks drop in.

Myrtle attended the Watson family reunion at Whitby, July 25.

Making patches for quilts is a favorite pastime. She also watches television, listens to the radio (CFRB) and reads aloud.

She enjoys Sunday services on Cable TV broadcast from Uxbridge Baptist Church.

On the occasion of her birthday, Myrtle received many beautiful cards and bouquets of flowers including a dozen red roses. The Tribune extends congratulations.
