

Crowds jam Stouffville downtown for big Midnight Madness sale

Stouffville's downtown was packed with people Friday as merchants held their annual Midnight Madness sale. Here six-year-old Maureen Roy loads up with groceries at the IGA.

Steve and Dawn Pickard of Spring Street, Stouffville found room for two-year-old Robbie in the back of their grocery wagon. Robbie enjoys a midnight snack.

This smiling couple were just having a good time laughing and talking with their friends. They are Holly McNamara, 16, of McCowan Road and Mark Gornik, 15, of Manitoba Street.

The Stouffville Delicatessen set up a handy refreshment booth on the street outside their store. It was managed by Susan Winger (left) and Maureen Verhoog. Here they attempt to share a hotdog.

Eight-year-old Elaine Wong attracted customers with her smile outside the New Pine Tree Take-Out Restaurant, Main Street East.
