New storage location sought for Town's 'odds and ends'

By Sean Ryan

STOUFFVILLE — The block building on Burkholder Street, presently used for storage, has been recommended as a possible location to store equipment once housed in the old arena.

With the demolition of the old rink impending, all artifacts stored there after the new Recreation Complex began operation will have to be placed elsewhere.

Engineering Coordinator Paul Whitehouse has been investigating possible locations to house the equipment until a proper storage building is constructed.

In a report to Town Council he recommended the Recycling Depot would be "ideal" for Parks/Works equipment should it ever cease operation.

But for the interim, he recommended the block building be used in conjunction with space available in the Depot and Works garage.

Included within the long inventory list is a large chest-style freezer, deep fryer, coffee machine, 11 toilets, tennis nets, chain link fences, 30 metal folding chairs and a broken hot chocolate machine.

One suggestion raised in Council was to auction off those items not being used. Another was to notify smaller municipalities of artifacts they might find useful, like hockey nets or a time-clock.

Whatever the Town decides to do with the present collection, Councillor Jim Sanders suggested Council prepare a policy on how to rid themselves of unwanted municipal items in the future.

School welcomes seven new employees

Claremont Public School not only opened its doors to 15 new students this fall, it welcomed seven new employees as well.

The school will be holding an open house for parents and community members to meet the new staff and discuss their children's upcoming year, September 21, 7 to 9 p.m.

Principal Gail Elliott is also seeking two yard supervisors to oversee the school yard during lunch break. Anyone with an hour free per day interested in this paid position is asked to call Principal Elliott at 649-2000.
