

Stray pony found in Goodwood

By DENISE McDONALD
GOODWOOD — Tom and Dorothy Young have a stranger in their midst.

He is described as a black and white pinto gelding with four white socks, 10 hands high and approximately three to four years old. He is also extremely friendly and loves people.

On September 16, the R.R.1, Goodwood residents took in a stray Shetland pony that had been running loose on the road by their neighbor's property for several days.

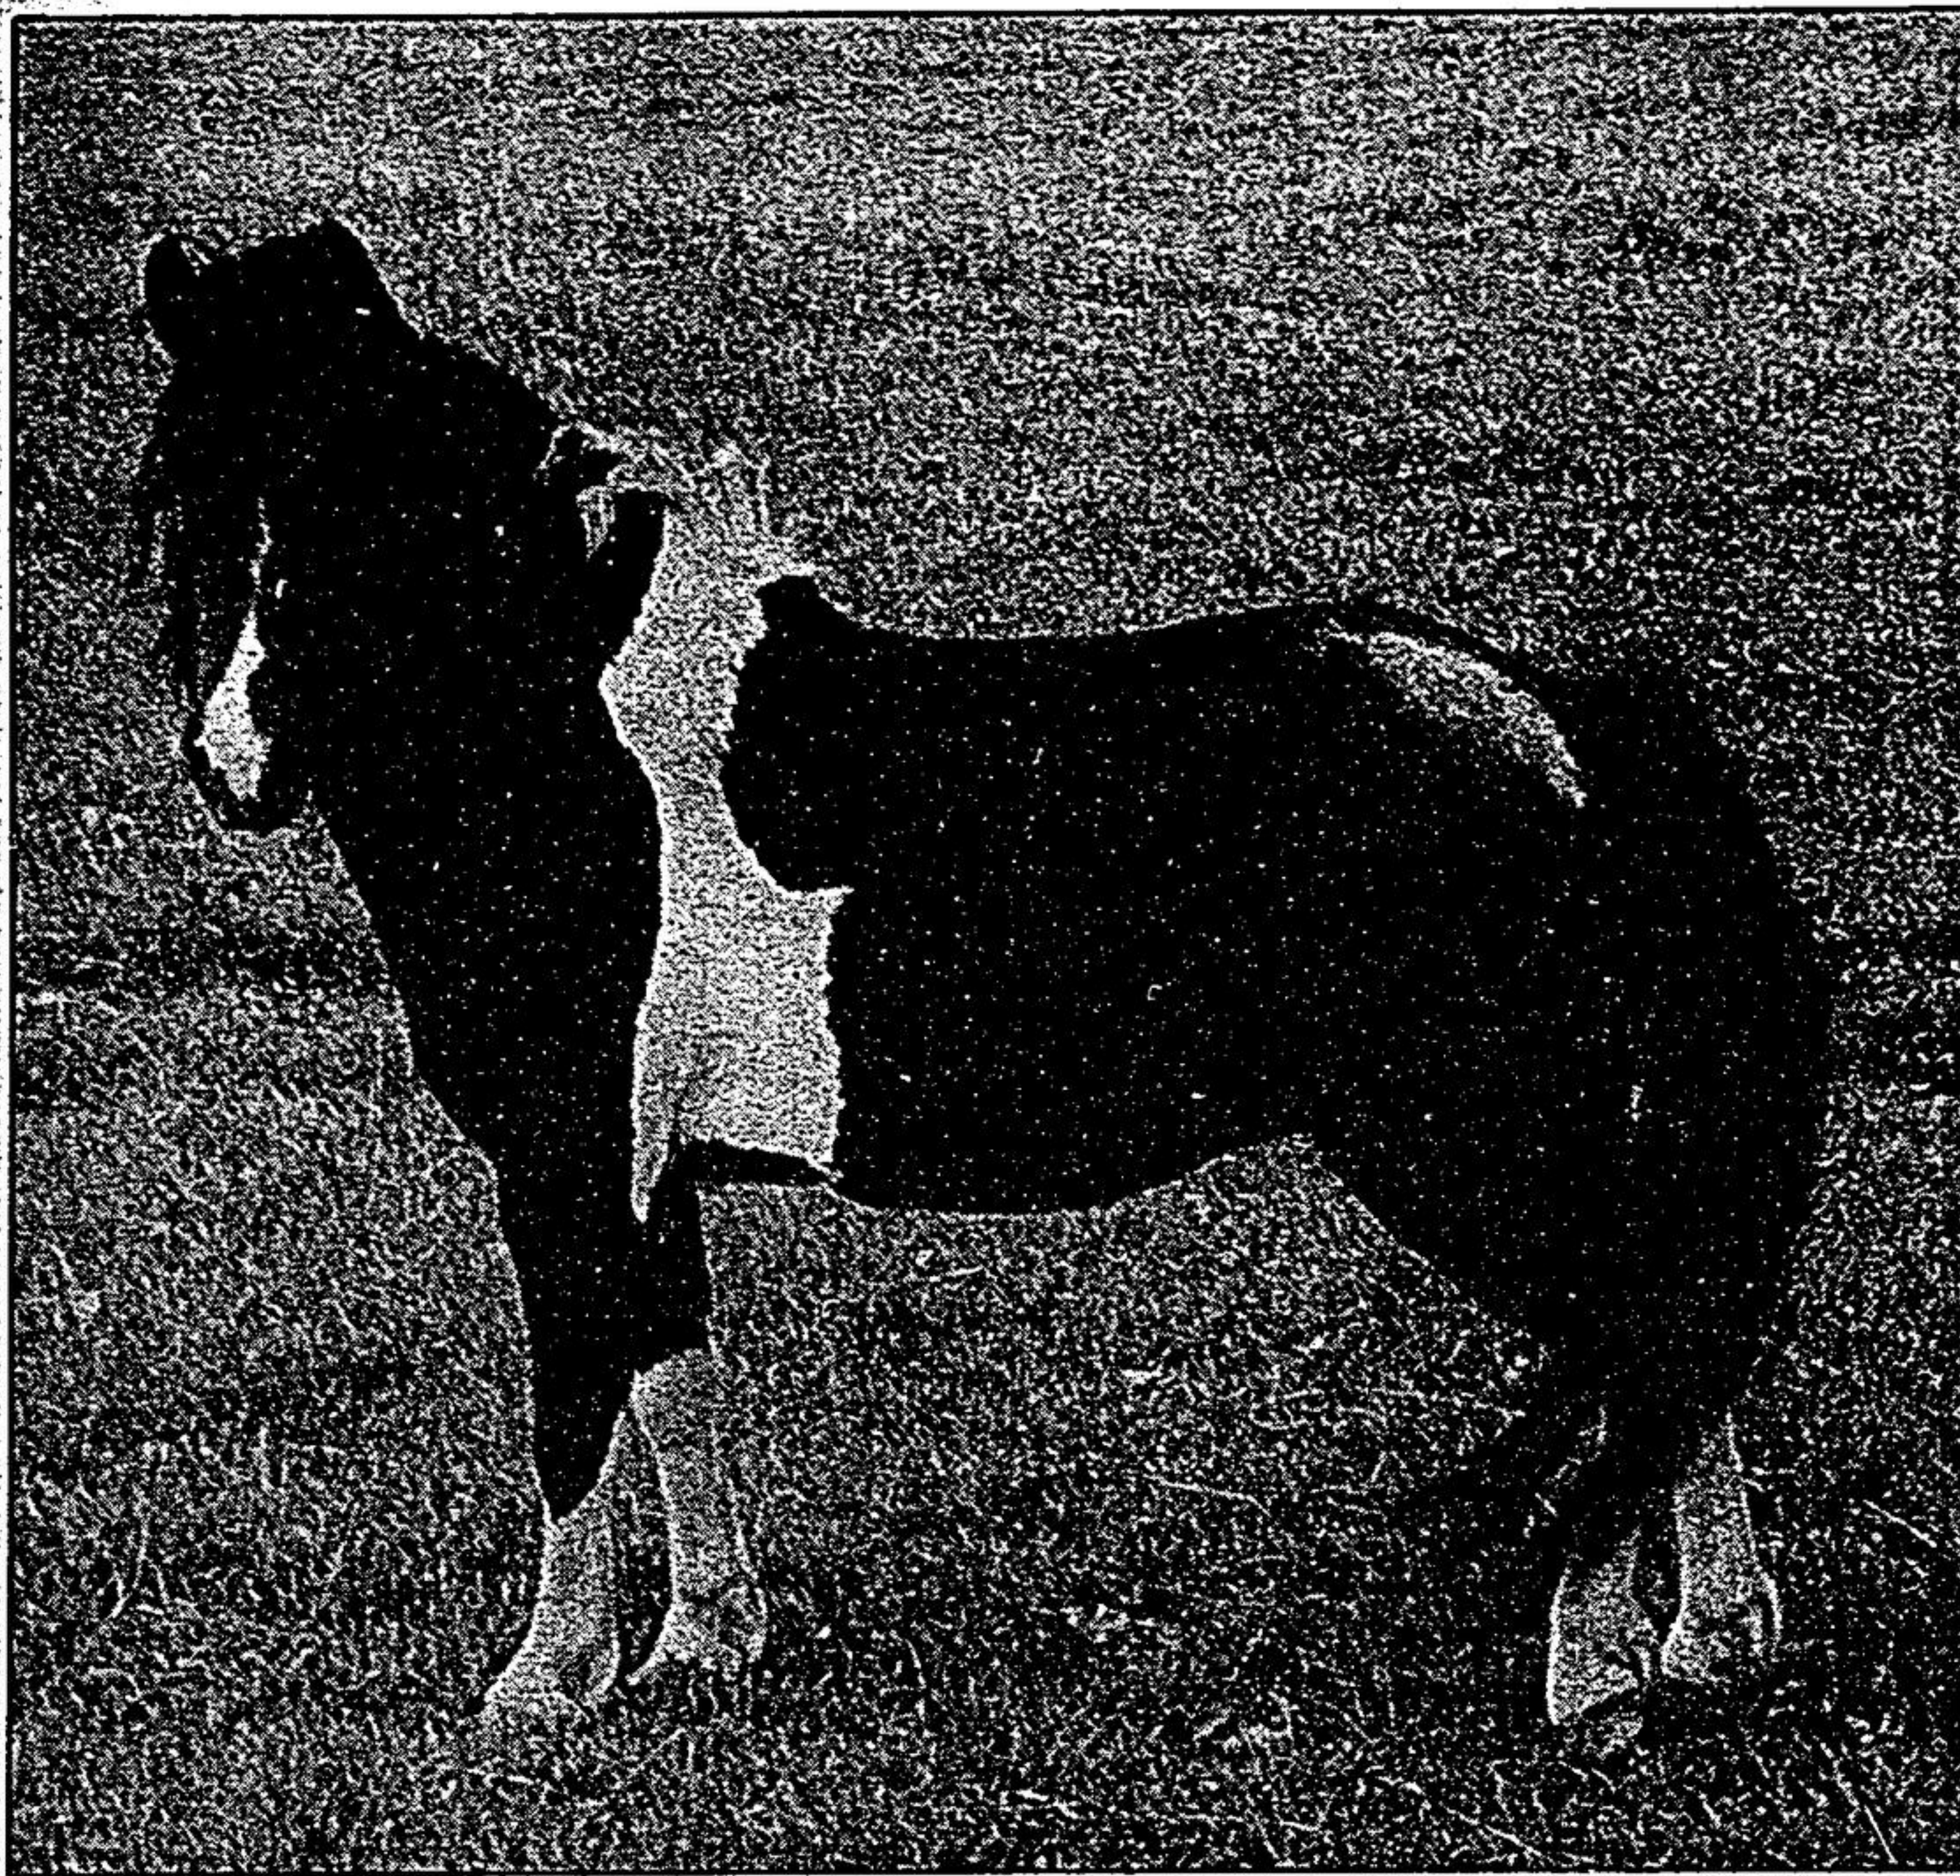

"Tommy has gone around to everyone we know who has horses, but no one seems to know where he came from," she says.

"We saw him running up and down the fenceline where our cattle are kept," says Mrs. Young. "So my daughter and granddaughter went out, put a loop on him and he came in as large as life."

"We always have people leaving stray dogs and cats on our property, but never a pony," Mrs. Young continues.

Mrs. Young claims the pony must have been loose for some time because he "was very thirsty" when they brought him in.
