

Football game brings out school spirit in abundance

Pessimists and sceptics be gone. Markham High does have spirit.

This fact was clearly illustrated by the attendance and attitudes of the plethora (ha, I finally got to use that word) of students who attended last Friday's football game and barbecue. Friday evening was also included in the festivities with the football dance.

Many people contributed to the success of the activities and were gratified by the great response. Vice-president Karen Lanning said that she was very happy with the turnout.

The school was decked out in more blue and white than has been seen in a long time. From students wearing long johns to teachers sporting Markham T-shirts over their suits.

Teachers also participated in cooking at the barbecue. Due to my late arrival my burger tasted more like a cracker than actual meat, but earlier customers said that theirs rated up to cafeteria standards.

On Friday morning students received two newsletters. The first concerned student accident insurance and the other titled Student Transportation contains detailed instructions on crossing the road, a must read.

Coming up on Oct. 6 for parents and students considering the next step in their education is the University Information Program (UIP).

This session will take place between 7 and 9 p.m. It is open to students and the parents of Markham, Unionville, Brother Andre, and Stouffville high schools.
