

Snowmobile theft suspects nabbed during 'gas-up'

STOUFFVILLE — Bruce Burley won't be parking his snowmobile at the side of his Linden Lane home anymore.

Mr. Burley awoke at 12:30 a.m. to find his 1980 Bombardier Citation missing.

call from authorities at about 10 p.m. that night, just 15 minutes after an officer had visited his home.

"I was worried because it's worth between $1,000 and $1,500 and it's not insured," said the owner. "It's in good condition and the price of snowmobiles have escalated. A new one can cost $6,000."

Mr. Burley was told to go to the Stouffville Canadian Tire to pick up his missing 'toy'.

They were told by Mr. Burley that a neighbor had spotted two youths attempting to start the snowmobile on the street about midnight.

He was informed suspects had been caught filling it up with gas. "I went to the Canadian Tire and picked up my snowmobile with a full tank of gas," said a relieved Mr. Burley. "It's parked in the garage now."

After "hounding" police all day, Mr. Burley received a phone

One youth has been charged with theft and possession. Charges are pending against two others.

They cannot be identified under the Young Offenders' Act.
