Town family thrilled by Calgary's warmth

By KATE GILDERDALE
"The spirit and enthusiasm were incredible." "The organization was amazing." "We didn't have enough time to do half the things we wanted to do."

These are a few of the positive comments expressed by Bill, Marguerite, Susan and Ken Murphy, Main Street West, Stouffville, related to an unforgettable one-week trip to the Winter Olympics in Calgary.

Bill and Marg had been planning a visit to the next Canadian Olympics "ever since we missed Montreal in 1976," according to Bill.

Although unable to obtain tickets to the opening ceremonies, they still packed a lot into their holiday, taking in two hockey games as well as men's downhill skiing and ski-jumping events.

"It was necessary to arrive at the ski competitions 2 1/2 hours early just for a look-in," explained Marg. "However, there was lots of entertainment and the atmosphere was friendly, so the time passed quickly."

The Murphy family stood at the finish line and watched the skiers complete their last laps. However, all spectators were able to follow each entry from the very beginning over huge TV monitors at the site.

"Before each event, forerunners would ski down with all different flags and do a formation," said Marg.

Susan was impressed with the spirit of the vast crowd.

"It was like one big party, with spectators on one side calling out slogans to spectators on the other," she said.

Marg, Susan and Ken all voted downhill skiing as the most exciting while Bill picked ski-jumping as his favorite.

"Despite the steepness of the course, athletes were never more than seven or eight feet off the ground," Bill noted.

The Murphy family met several famous athletes including Ken Read, Steve Podborski and Brian Stemmie. Susan posed with several of them while Bill, Marg and Ken snapped photographs.

Everyone Bill and Marg talked

Stouffville's Bill and Marguerite Murphy accompanied by son Ken and daughter Susan appreciated the 'warmth' of Calgary and the friendliness of its people. Susan is shown here with downhill ski sensation Ken Read.

with were impressed at how well everything was organized. Although security was a major concern, it didn't interfere with anyone's enjoyment, they said.

The only complaint they heard was from some of the hockey players. They said there weren't enough girls in the village!

The hockey players were the only participants who really didn't have much opportunity to watch other events, Bill observed. "When they weren't playing, they were practicing," he said.

Bill, Marg, Ken and Susan met up with two West German players. No. 4 (the team captain), and No. 19, ("I might be able to remember their names, but I could never pronounce them," said Susan), were extremely friendly.

The captain presented Susan with a special Olympic Pin, something she'll always treasure. Souvenirs were widely available, although most disappeared as quickly as they hit the stands.

Particularly popular were headbands. Susan managed to obtain one with both the Calgary logo and the Olympic logo sewn on. However, they were disappointed they couldn't find more.

"No sooner did they arrive than they were gone," said Bill.

Pin-collecting and trading were other popular past-times. There was even a centre set up for people looking for exchanges.

The Murphy family stayed with relatives in the area.

"We were lucky we didn't have to look for accommodation," said Bill, "but we probably would have fitted in more things related to the Games if we'd been staying at a hotel or motel."

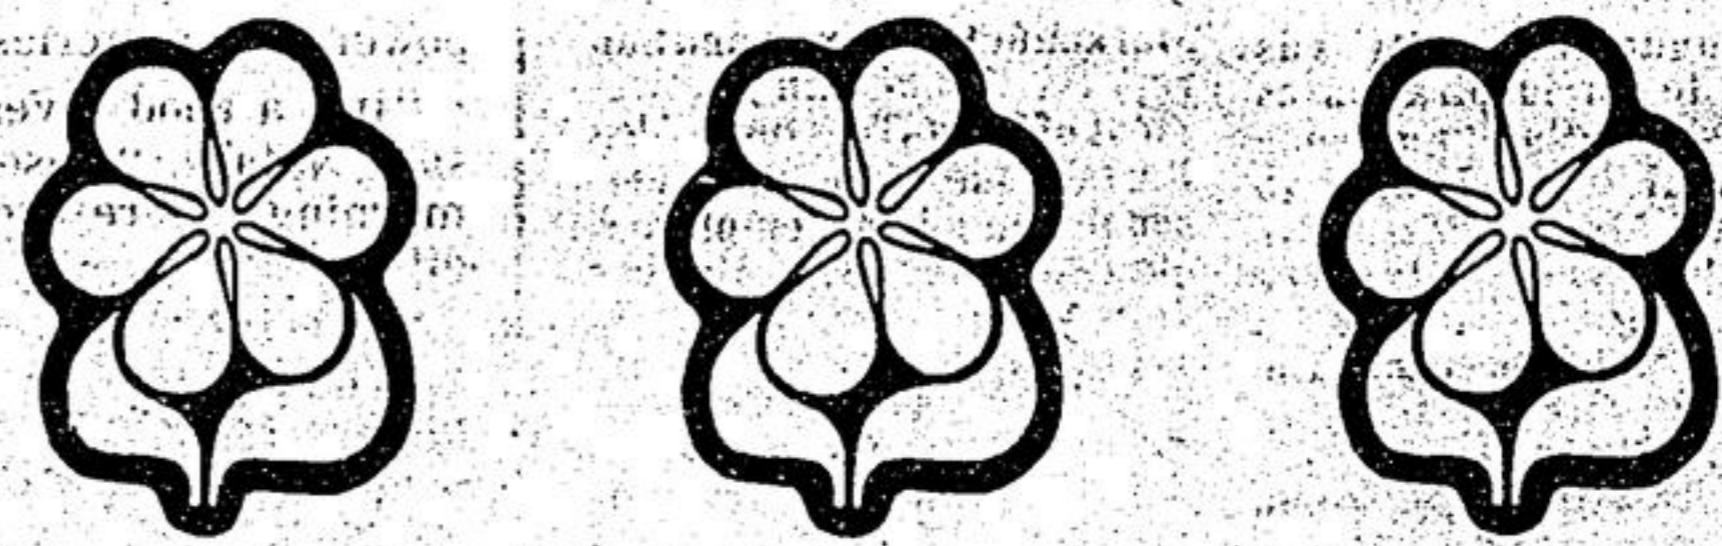

Every night after the medals were awarded, there was a laser show followed by fireworks.

"We've never seen anything quite so spectacular," agreed Marg.

The Murphy family had great praise too for the many volunteers attending the Games. "They were friendly, helpful and very enthusiastic," said Bill.

The Winter Olympics may be over but for Bill, Marguerite, Ken and Susan Murphy, it's a memory that will last a lifetime.

However, if and when this extravaganza returns to Canada, anywhere in Canada, guess who'll be the first in line for tickets!
