

Security of all sorts for local homeowners

Home protection service for everything from burglary to furnace failure is available from a company new to Markham.

First Response Home Security Systems Ltd. opened its new head office on Amber Street in Markham last week.

The company provides wireless security systems which can detect burglars, fire, heat failure or sump pump failure and can help in a medical emergency.

The company is run by Unionville resident Glenn Crosby who, with vice-president Mark Fairley, hopes to expand the business with franchises throughout North America.

In a press release, Crosby says that the security system can be expanded or removed to be re-installed in a new home. First Response monitors homes 24-hours-a-day and dispatches the appropriate emergency crew.

And it has been engineered so that even a child can learn how it operates.

Attending the company's opening were MPP Don Cousens, Markham Mayor Carole Bell and Tom Cheek, voice of the Blue Jays and radio voice of First Response.
