Phantom likes Midnight Mink

From my secret hiding place on the balcony of the Uxbridge Music Hall, I have been delighted to see that the Uxbridge Players are busy once again with rehearsals. How I have missed them since last November.

The Players have a professional director, Leonard Hosios, through a grant from Theatre Ontario, so it will be interesting to see their forthcoming production Midnight Mink, a Comedy by Peter Coke, in April.

This play is a sequel to "Breath of Spring" which was so successful in April '86. There is the same group of senior citizens plus three new characters and they are up to their old tricks again, "acquiring" furs which they sell, then give their profits anonymously to poor families on their charity list.

David Reid, as Brigadier Rayne and Monica Briggs as Dame Beatrice Appleby are repeating their roles with great enthusiasm and I was glad to see Liz Larter, Gladys Stephens and Jonathon Corbett who will be remembered for their performances in the hilarious comedy, Play On, last November, as well as Mervyn Thompson, back again after a brief absence.

There are three newcomers, Pauline Prentice, who plays the dominant, versatile Nanette Parry; Dorothy Needham as Dame Beatrice's friend, Lady Alice Miller; and Gerry Hegerty, the devious Irishman who tries to twist the others round his little finger with his wily charms, but gets nowhere with the autocratic Dame Beatrice and the organizing Brigadier.

I am sure this will prove to be delightful evening's entertainment, so make a note of the dates on your calendar — show only on Sat. April 16 and Fri. April 22; tickets $7, Seniors $6; dinner theatre on Sat. April 23, tickets $20.

I shall be sending further reports on the progress of rehearsals of this amusing and entertaining play.
