

Parents host gala party after the dance

By JEFF CARNEY
It was a night to remember... The tuxedo fit like a glove, and looked absolutely dazzling. Before long, a similarly dressed chauffeur was knocking at my door. "Mr. Carney?" he inquired. "Your limousine is here." Feeling like a prince, I chatted with the chauffeur as we drove to Aurora to pick up my date for the evening. Flowers in hand, I knocked on the door — and there she was: Her blue dress was ravishing, and her beautiful black hair and brown eyes took my breath away. After a few pictures for Mom and Dad, it was off to the Sheraton

Parkway, and the Spring Prom of 1988. For those who didn't see the several limousines in Stouffville last Friday, and who haven't been paying attention to the goings-on at SDSS this past month, I'll give you a brief recap. SDSS's annual Spring Formal was held this past Friday in one of the ballrooms of the Sheraton Parkway Hotel. And it was quite simply an evening to remember...

We arrived in time to catch the formal reception at its peak. Friends mingled, compared stories, took pictures and oohed and aahed over each other's outfits. Dinner was then served as the students passed through the receiving line and into the ballroom. Following dinner, social convener Lori Woolford and former social convener Annika Hannan delighted the audience with several humorous "awards" (ie. Couple of the Year, Couple Most Likely to Get Married etc.). I was honored that Lori and Annika picked up on a long running joke and gave Katherine (my beautifully Oriental girlfriend) and me the "Couple Who Will Have The Best Looking Children" award. But all of these awards only led up to the big ones. Prom King and Queen. Congratulations to this year's winners — Paul Sinclair and Jane Anderson. As the music started and Paul and Jane whirled across the dance floor, the tables were vacated as couples joined the King and Queen and began the dance that would last until one o'clock in the morning. Nobody ever said dancing in a tuxedo or a formal dress was easy, but nobody seemed to mind. At one o'clock the limousines arrived and then headed off to Bruce's Mill, where courtesy of Jeff MacDowell and his parents, the Grade 13 Prom party was being held. Jeff and his parents deserve special mention at this time, for they threw one of the most professional and mature parties ever held for SDSS students. A gate attendant was posted in the driveway — if you weren't invited, you weren't allowed in. You also had to let the attendant know how you were getting home, thus making sure that nobody would be drinking and driving. All of Stouffville owes the MacDowells a hearty "thank you", as because of their efforts Spring Prom '88 ended on a happy note.
