

'Girl Next Door' Caroline flies high

By JIM THOMAS
GOODWOOD—Many teens think life is boring. It's a common response. This description, however, isn't part of Caroline Mercer's vocabulary quite the opposite. She's excitement personified. Always ready and willing to welcome new interests and activities.

She's our 'Girl Next Door'. Recently, Caroline joined members of the Toronto Parachute Club in a sky diving experience near Arthur, Ont. She plummeted 3,000 feet including a free fall of four seconds before opening her parachute.

"It was great," she says. Caroline admits to enjoying risks. At the same time, she claims sky diving's safer than driving a car.

She's been properly trained. She knows how to jump and how to land. This knowledge is vital she claims.

Each diver, Caroline explains, carries two chutes. "If the first doesn't open, you pray the second one does."

"If she can do it, so can I," Caroline recalls saying to herself as the initial jumper took off into the wild blue yonder. She described the first four seconds as "the longest time in my life."

She's looking forward to a return trip.

But first, she's going to try her hand at hang gliding. She'll receive instruction from Claremont's Michael Robertson, one of the best in the business. She has no visions of soaring from the top of the CN Tower, however, as Michael did recently.

Caroline and her parents, Robert and Penny Mercer, reside on a beautiful estate property high on a third concession (Uxbridge) hillside. They can see for miles.

Caroline has two older brothers, Tim and Andrew. An honors graduate of Uxbridge Secondary School, Caroline attained an Ontario Scholarship with an average of 84.5 percent. Her highest mark was 90 in Math.

Caroline plans to attend university in the fall of '89. First, she'll visit Australia, calling on friends she met during a trip to England and Europe last year.

Some day, she hopes to holiday in Africa.

Caroline has positive things to say about U.S.S. For two years, she played the flute in the school band. She also belonged to the photography club. Squash is a favorite sport.

Caroline says her parents have greatly influenced her life. Her closest friend, Kalle Haralampides, has also been a source of strong support.

This summer, patrons of the Toronto-Dominion Bank in Uxbridge are the beneficiaries of Caroline's smile. She's a teller on the T-D staff.

Eighteen-year-old Caroline Mercer, R.R. 15, Goodwood, enjoys risky forms of recreation like sky diving and hang gliding. An honors, Grade 13 graduate from Uxbridge Secondary School, Caroline is employed this summer on the staff of the Toronto-Dominion Bank in Uxbridge. —Jim Thomas
