

Market puts town on the map

The Sales Barn, the Flea Market, whatever the name, it's put Stouffville on the map. Every weekend thousands visit the site to pick up produce like the fresh potatoes held by Amanda Devlin, one of Harry Simpson's helpers. Ballantyne.

There's something for every age, men, women, boys and girls. For many buyers and sellers, it's the place to be. Six-year-old Stephanie Tsicos of Richmond Hill shares conversation with a talking Mickey Mouse.

Monique Cozma of Hopewell Avenue, Toronto, has been coming to the Sales Barn for 13 years. Her beautiful display of paintings attract many admirers and buyers. She operates an Arts and Mirrors shop in the city.

Francis Tsoy of Pharmacy Avenue, Scarborough, is an excellent artist, as shown by his painting of Princess Diana. Mr. Tsoy's skill has been the subject of numerous articles in Metro Toronto newspapers.

Cuddly rabbits have always an attraction. Eleven-year-old Hillary Whitebread of R.R. 3, Claremont would like to take this one home.

Corriette Ilotstee of Thickwood Blvd., Stouffville, was working behind the counter at Elmira Purveyors Co. when The Tribune cameraman happened by.

Who could resist the smile flashed by 17-year-old Tracey MacDonald of Hamilton Hall Drive, Markham, an employee on the staff of National Sports Centre? The cameraman couldn't.
