

Wins one hundred anniversary dollars

In honor of The Tribune's 100th anniversary, the newspaper offered 100 gold dollars as a grand prize at the 1988 Trade Show with all ticket receipts going to the Markham-

Stouffville Hospital Building Fund. Roy Flewell, R.R. 2, Stouffville was the lucky winner. Here he receives his award from Arlene Maddock of The Tribune's Office staff.

Pay refused
Town movie 'extra' walks off the set

By JIM THOMAS
STOUFFVILLE — Diane Buxton, Dorman Drive, Stouffville, is pretty enough to be a movie star. However, she settled for the role of an 'extra' in a Toronto-based production starring Mr. T.

On Sept. 13, she drove to a pre-selected site in the area of Islington Avenue and The Queensway.

She wasn't alone. An estimated 250 onlookers swelled the crowd, including several others from Stouffville.

Diane checked in at 5:30 p.m. and was placed in a prime location directly back of the stars.

After several hours of waiting, Diane approached a senior official with regard to pay.

She was told 'no way'.

"At first, I thought he was joking," Diane told The Tribune. However, the refusal was repeated.

When Diane threatened to walk off the set, she was told she couldn't leave. But she left anyway and others followed.

"One woman was crying," she said.

Diane said she and others had earlier answered an advertisement in a newspaper to attend a filming at the Sales Barn in Stouffville starring Jané Fonda. This scene was later cancelled. However, the same invitation was extended for the Toronto set, she stated.

"I couldn't believe it," Diane stated. "It was all pretty tacky. At least they could have paid for our gas."

One lady, Diane said, brought fifteen people with her.

"I really felt sorry for the woman who left crying. The 24-year-old mother of two said her husband had taken off work early to look after the children."

She arrived home around midnight.

Diane admits the experience has taught her a lesson.

"Next time, I'll have it put in writing," she concluded.

Mania lives on

It's time again!

To get the Music Mania ball rolling, a general meeting is scheduled for Wed., Sept. 28 at Stouffville United Church, Church Street North.

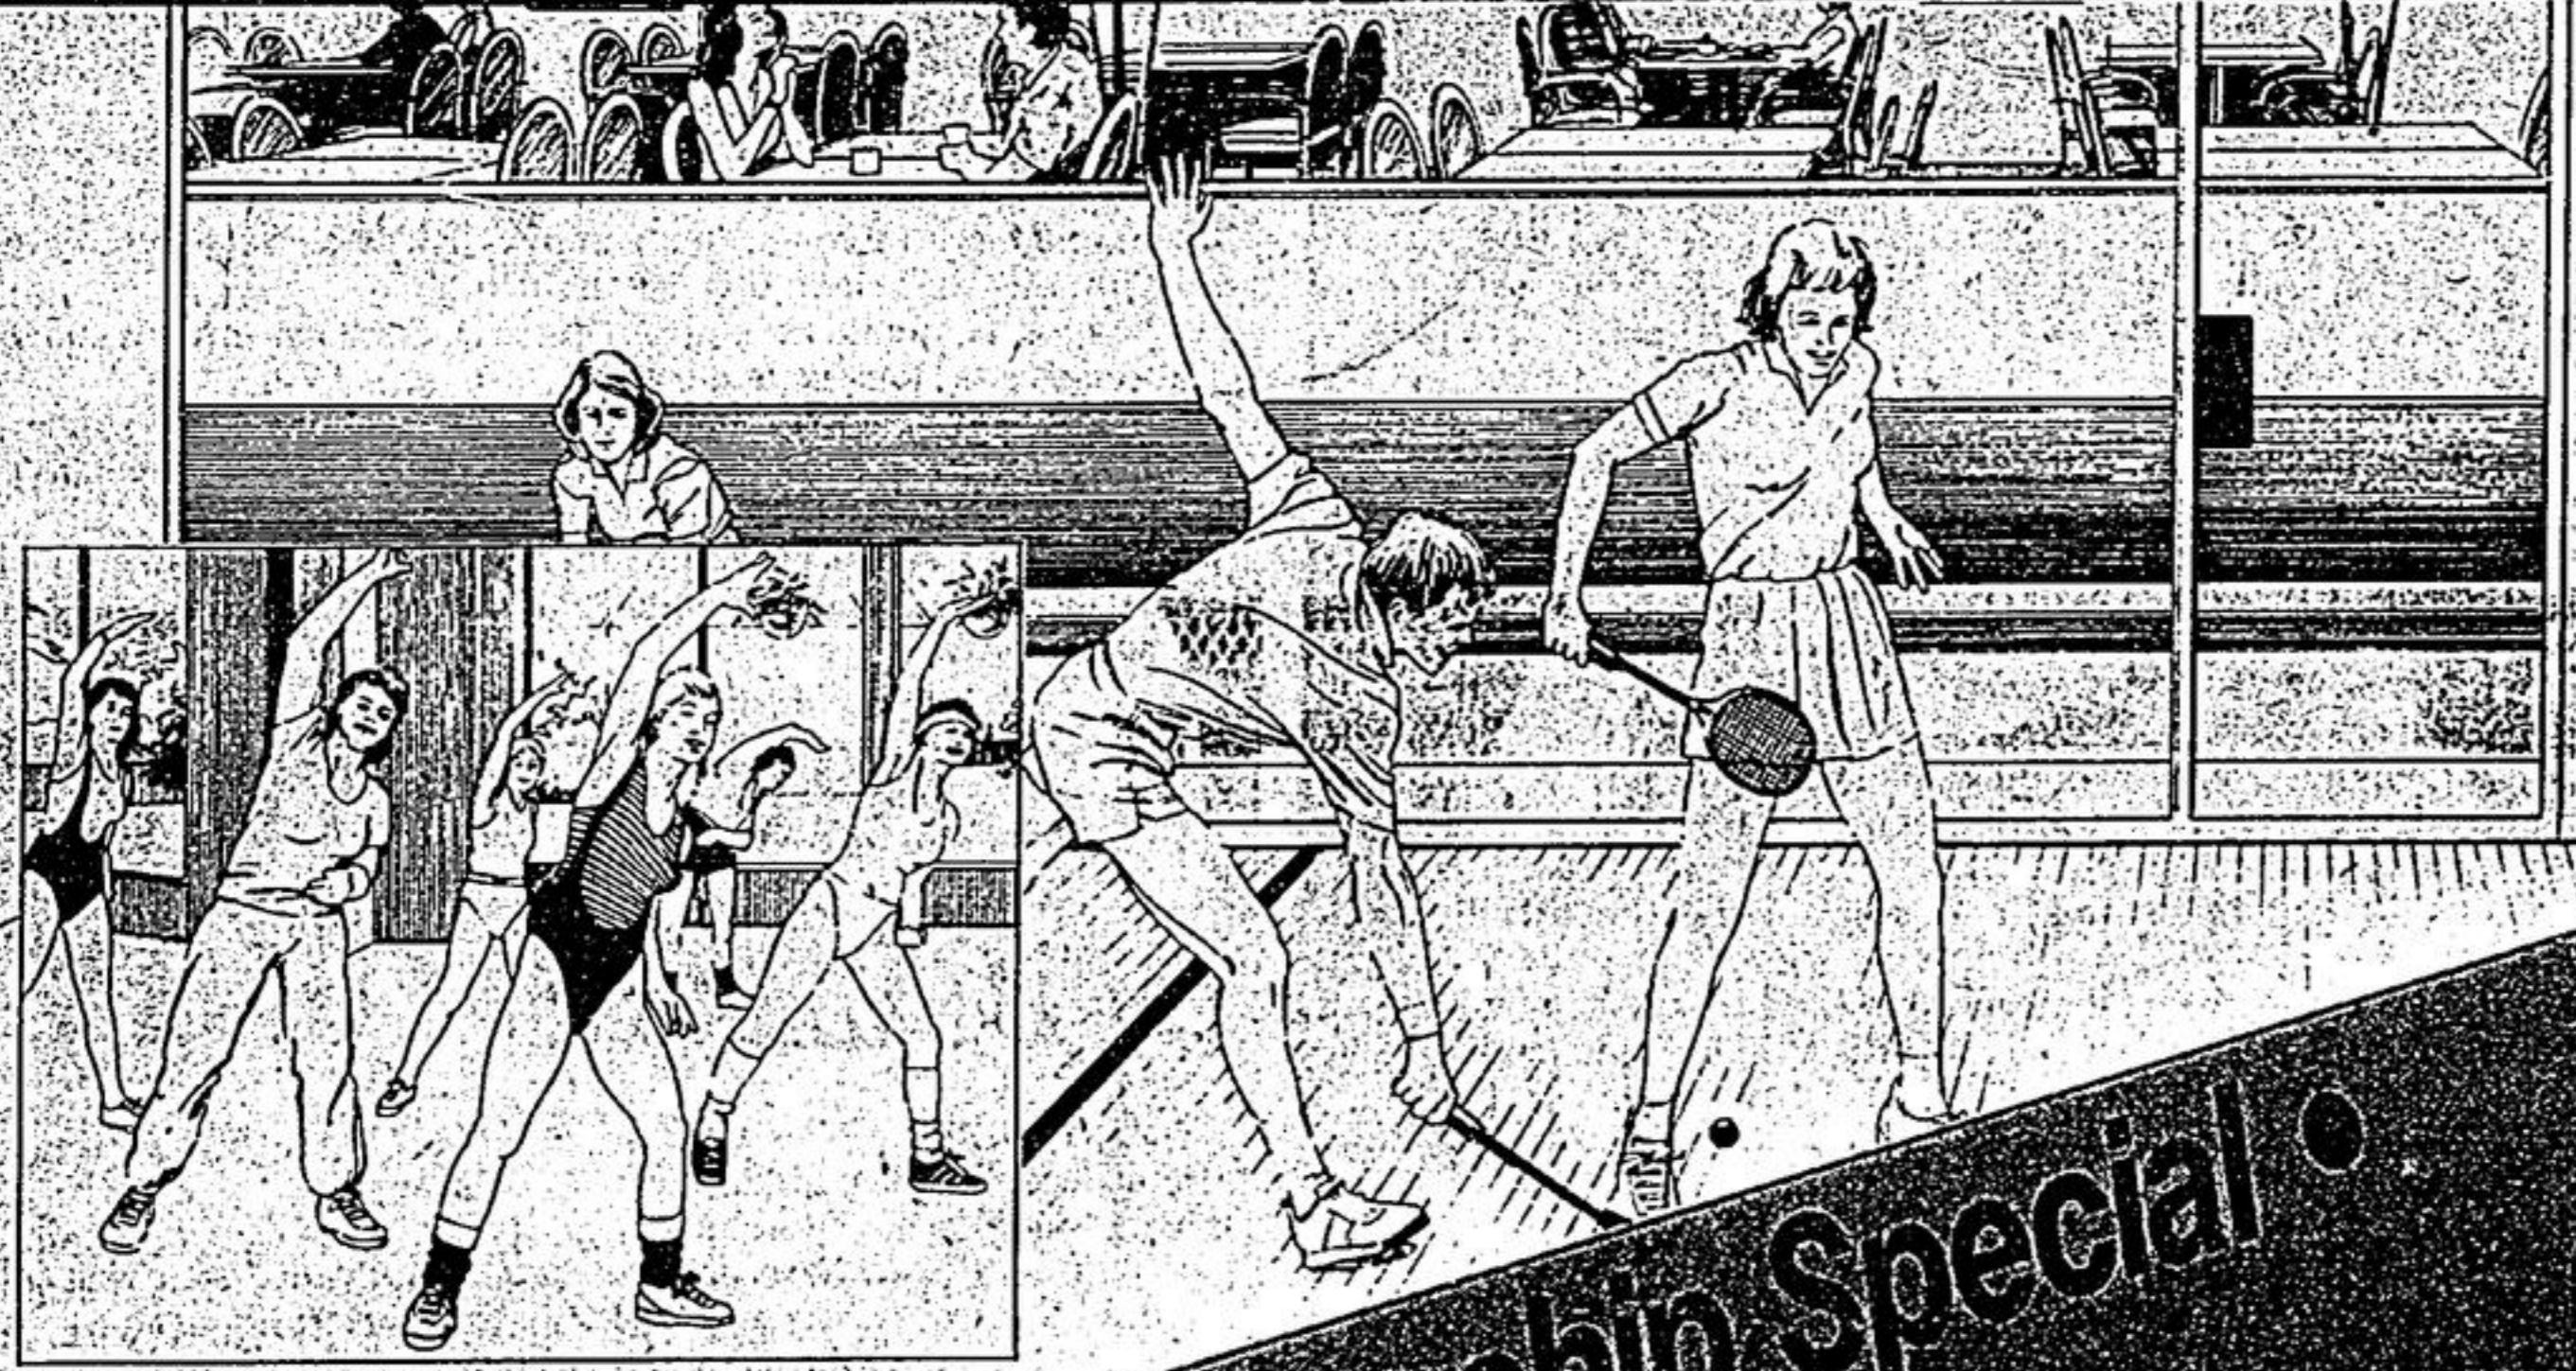

The time is 8 p.m. Returning to direct 1989, the show is Ed Warlow. The producer is David Duggan. The music director is Linda Hollin.

"We need everyone, both young and old," says David. "You don't have to sing or dance, just bring your enthusiasm."

Participants both on stage and off are required, he explains.
