More schools are needed in area

Cheryl Walker is a St. Patrick parishioner and a 14-year resident of Markham. She studied French at Laval University and has a B.Sc. in biology and psychology.

From December 1985 until January 1987, Walker served as the separate school representative on the York Region Board of Education.

She sees a dire need for Catholic high schools in Unionville and Milliken Mills and an elementary school in Buttonville North to relieve the serious overcrowding. She also feels French immersion is important.

Teacher seeking Trustee's seat

Maddelena Smirnakis, a six-year resident of Unionville, has two children in the separate school system. She has 10 years teaching experience with the Metro Separate School Board, including primary, junior, special education and adult education experience. She is currently serving her second year as president of St. Matthew Parent-Teacher Guild.

The St. Justin Martyr parishioner would push for new schools, particularly Catholic high schools in Milliken Mills and Unionville to relieve the overcrowding at Brother Andre. She wants to improve communication between parents and the trustee.

Smirnakis would like to see a sound academic curriculum that reflects Catholic values and principles.
