

SDSS hears singers' message

ANDREA VALERIE GRUNDY
SDSS Correspondent

The school was honored by the presence of the Youthquest Singers from Lynchburg, Virginia on Nov. 4.

They shared their message of the five most important things in dating. To them, these things were:

- Love yourself. Don't let people walk over you.
- Love the other person and care about the other person's feelings.

- Love the future and don't settle for the best.
- Look out for number one — the other person.
- Love God.

This message was presented through song and drama. Although there was a Christian theme, it wasn't forced. Students were given an alternative to attending the assembly.

A few chose to go to the study hall provided but in spite of that, the gymnasium was full.

People who were there became pretty involved and the master of ceremonies used people's names from the school to get everybody's attention.

Some names used were Dan Larmer, Chris Winn and Wallace Barbour.

The people who went to the assembly listened attentively and became quite involved. The assembly was worthwhile and a pleasant change from an otherwise typical day.
