

A unique town let's protect it

Dear Editor:

In co-operation with York Region, we need to stake out our place as a unique Town that's worth protecting.

Valuable recreation space is provided by the huge Regional Forest, located in Whitchurch-Stouffville.

A wonderful winter experience is to walk or ski through this area, immediately north of Ballantrae.

Our excellent Public Library, Art Gallery, parks and recreation complex support our lively and stimulating community.

People know their neighbors and people they meet on the street.

Farms and golf courses give a special rural ambience to the Town.

Our municipal government is easily accessible.

The Region of York needs small communities like ours, just as we all need the larger communities. Each is an important part of the Region.

We need to support the Region in resolving the issues of housing, social services, health, waste management, communications and transportation. In so doing, we will be improving our quality of life as well as helping others.

We do not need to squander a treasure to achieve quality.

Talents know no bounds

STOUFFVILLE — Anne Christie has added a new dimension to her dancing and singing talents during her third year in a Fine Arts Honors Degree Course at the University of Waterloo.

"Last term, I directed a play on campus," says Anne, daughter of Howard and Audrey Christie, Elm Road, Stouffville. "It was a Canadian play called 'The Valetorian' by Bill Smiley, an off-the-wall comedy. It was a real challenge."

"For a long time, I was on the other side," explains Anne, "if provided some useful insights."

Anne says she hasn't done any acting recently. This term, she's gone back to dancing.

"I'm taking a modern dance course and really enjoying it," she says.

Right now, Anne's setting her sights on an audition in April that she fervently hopes will get her into the drama program at York.

At the end of this year, Anne will have her English degree. She then hopes to give more time to drama.

"I intend to work my hardest," she states, "I want to obtain more experience on stage."

If she doesn't get into York, she'll likely return to Waterloo for her final year.

Eventually, Anne says she's looking at the possibility of a career in either radio or television, or perhaps in the area of directing or producing.
